

CONTENTS

Preface		vii
Chapter I	THE PROBLEM OF ETHICAL NATURALISM	3
1.1	Morality, ethics, philosophy of ethics	3
1.2	Ethical naturalism	10
1.3	The problem of what there is	15
1.4	Metaphysical naturalism	27
Chapter II	CLASSICAL ETHICAL NATURALISM	35
2.1	Three kinds of ethical naturalism	35
2.2	Classical naturalism	36
2.3	The argument of reductionism	38
2.4	The argument of the naturalistic fallacy	41
2.5	The argument from the nature of ethical disagreement	71
2.6	Conclusion	76
Chapter III	EMOTIVE NATURALISM	78
3.1	Emotive meaning	78
3.2	The emotive theory of ethics is naturalistic	82
3.3	How value-discourse is practical	82
3.4	How a value-sentence expresses an attitude	87
3.5	How we appraise moral feelings and attitudes in ordinary discourse	92
3.6	Conclusion concerning how value-discourse is practical	96
3.7	Conclusion	98

Chapter IV	LOGICAL NATURALISM	99
4.1	The position of the good-reasons ethicist	99
4.2	Why the good-reasons ethicist is a naturalist	102
4.3	Two further problems the good-reasons ethicist refuses to consider	103
4.4	Analysis of 'ought'	106
4.5	What constitutes a good reason for an ethical judgment	121
4.6	Reformulation of the issue between naturalism and nonnaturalism	129
Chapter V	THE CASE FOR LOGICAL NATURALISM	130
5.1	How logical naturalism is to be appraised	130
5.2	What is an imperative	132
5.3	The search for suppressed imperative premises	135
5.4	Summary and conclusion	151
Chapter VI	THE CASE AGAINST LOGICAL NATURALISM	153
6.1	Does the logical naturalist really find the alleged suppressed imperative premises	153
6.2	Moore's recurring question in a new form	160
6.3	The authority of the basic rational imperatives	161
6.4	The character of primary desires and of basic rational attitudes	168
6.5	The nature and modes of the semantic dimension of experience	187
6.6	Summary and conclusion	198
Chapter VII	METAPHYSICAL IMPLICATIONS	201
7.1	Introduction	201
7.2	Value, change, and causality	201
7.3	Free will and the naturalistic theory of change	214
7.4	Biological and physical phenomena and the teleological theory of change	222
7.5	Religious experience and teleology	224
Index		227