

Contents

I: Introduction	3-7
Teaching constantly changes	3
It covers many different subjects in school and college	3
It is widely practiced by ordinary people in daily life	4
It is difficult and important	6
This book is an outline of its methods, not of its subjects	6
II: The Teacher	8-65
His rewards and his difficulties	8
The qualities of a good teacher	12-57
knowing the subject · 12
liking the subject · 18
liking the pupils · 25
bad schools and bad classes · 27
knowing the pupils	33
youngsters · 33
individuals and types · 37
eccentrics · 41
knowing other things	48
humor · 53
The abilities of a good teacher	57-65
memory	58
will-power	59
kindness	63

III: The Teacher's Methods	66-153
Preparation	66-86
planning	66
renewal of material	80
Communication	86-146
the three methods	87
lecturing	89-107
delivery • 89
notes and their use • 97
punctuation • 103
tutoring	107-16
invention and purpose • 107
difficulty • 108
value • 109
methods described • 111
recitation	116-46
examinations • 118
questions and discussion • 124
competition • 129
the uses of tradition • 132
punishment • 142
Fixing the impression	146-53
review	148
questions	149
statement of outstanding problems	150
IV: Great Teachers and Their Pupils	154-233
The sophists	154
Socrates	156
Plato	160
Aristotle and Alexander	163
Jesus	168
Good teachers and bad pupils	176
good schools and bad products • 181
good fathers and bad sons • 182
an explanation and some remedies • 185

Renaissance teachers	189
The Jesuit teachers	195
Teachers of the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries	199
Fathers of great men	222
professional men · 224
amateurs · 227
 v: Teaching in Everyday Life	 234-50
Fathers and mothers	234
Husbands and wives	236
Executives	237
Doctors	237
Psychiatrists	238
Clergymen and priests	239
Advertisers, publicists, propagandists	240
Communist education of prisoners · 242
Authors and artists	244
Principles of everyday teaching	248
 NOTES	 251
 INDEX	 follows page 259