

CONTENTS

Translator's Introduction	ix
Note on the Text	xxxiii
Selected Bibliography	xxxv

THE METAPHYSICS OF MORALS

Preface to Part I, The Metaphysical Elements of Justice	3
Introduction	10

I. Of the Relation of the Faculties of the Human Mind to the Moral Laws (10)—II. Of the Idea and the Necessity of a Metaphysics of Morals (14)—III. Of the Subdivision of a Metaphysics of Morals (18)—IV. Rudimentary Concepts of the Metaphysics of Morals (21)

Part I

THE METAPHYSICAL ELEMENTS OF JUSTICE

Introduction	33
--------------	----

§A. What Jurisprudence Is (33)—§B. What Is Justice? (33)
— §C. Universal Principle of Justice (35)—§D. Justice Is United with the Authorization to Use Coercion (35)—§E.
Strict Justice Can Also Be Represented as the Possibility of a General Reciprocal Use of Coercion That is Consistent with the Freedom of Everyone in Accordance with Universal Laws (36)

APPENDIX TO THE INTRODUCTION
TO THE ELEMENTS OF JUSTICE

39

Equivocal Rights (39)—I. Equity (39)—II. The Right of Necessity (41)

Division of the Theory of Justice 42

A. General Division of the Duties of Justice (42)—
B. General Division of Justice (43)

There Is Only One Innate Right (43)

Division of the Metaphysics of Morals in General 45

I [Division According to Type of Legislation] (45)—
II. Division According to the Objective Relationship of the Law to Duty (46)—*III. Division According to the Subjective Relationship Between the Subject Who Imposes
the Duty and the Subject Bound by the Duty* (46-47)—
Division of Morality as a System of Duties in General (48)

The General Theory of Justice

I. PRIVATE LAW

Of Proprietary Rights in General in External Things

First Chapter: Of the Mode of Having Something External as One's Property

51

§1 (51)—§2. The Juridical Postulate of Practical Reason (52)—§3 (53)—§4. Exposition of the Concept of External Proprietary Rights Belonging to You and Me (54)—§5. Definition of the Concept of External Proprietary Rights Belonging to You and Me (55)—§6. Deduction of the Concept of Purely de jure Possession of an External Object (Possessio noumenon) (56)—§7. Application of the Principle of the Possibility of External Property to Objects of Experience (60)—§8. Having External Things as One's Property Is Possible Only in a Juridical Condition of Society, Under a Public-Legislative Authority, That Is, a Civil Society (64)—§9. In the State of Nature, There Can Be Actual External Property, But It Is Only Provisional (65)

Third Chapter: Of Acquisition That Is Subjectively Stipulated Through a Decision of a Public Judiciary 68

§36 (68)

Transition from Property in a State of Nature to Property in a Juridical State in General 69

§41 (69)—§42 (71)

II. PUBLIC LAW

First Section: Municipal Law 75

§43 [Definition of Public Law] (75)—§44 [Rights in a State of Nature] (76)—§45 [The Civil State] (77)—§46 [The Legislative Authority and the Citizen] (78)—§47 [The Original Contract] (80)—§48 [Mutual Relationships of the Three Authorities] (81)—§49 [The Executive Authority and the Distinct Functions of the Three Authorities] (81)

GENERAL REMARKS ON THE JURIDICAL CONSEQUENCES ARISING FROM THE NATURE OF THE CIVIL UNION

A [Revolution, Resistance, and Reform] (84)—

B [The Sovereign as Supreme Proprietor of the Land—Taxation—Police—Inspection] (90)—C [Public

Welfare: The Poor, Foundling Hospitals, Churches] (92)—D [Public Offices, the Nobility] (95)—E. The Penal Law and the Law of Pardon (99)

I [The Right to Punish] (99)—

II [The Right to Pardon] (107)

§50 [The Juridical Relationships of a Citizen to His Own and to Foreign Countries] (108)—§51 [The Three Forms of the State: Autocracy, Aristocracy, and Democracy] (109)—§52 [The Ideal State] (111)

Second Section: The Law of Nations

114

§53 [Definition of the Law of Nations] (114)—§54 [The Elements of the Law of Nations] (116)—§55 [The Right of Going to War in Relation to the State's Own Subjects] (116)—§56 [The Right of Going to War in Relation to Other States] (118)—§57 [Rights During a War] (119)—§58 [Rights After a War] (121)—§59 [The Rights of Peace] (122)—§60 [The Right of a State Against an Unjust Enemy] (122)—§61 [The Establishment of Enduring Peace] (123)

Third Section: World Law

125

§62 [The World Community] (125)—Conclusion [Perpetual Peace] (127)

APPENDIX

Supplementary Explanations of the Metaphysical Elements of Justice

[On the Definition of the Faculty of Desire] 130

5. Additional Remarks in Elucidation of the Concept of the Penal Law (131)—8. Of the Rights of the State Relating to Perpetual Foundations for Its Subjects (133)

A [Private Institutions for the Poor, Invalid, and Sick] (134)—B [The Church] (134)—C [The Nobility] (137)—D [Majorats] (138)—Conclusion [Duty to Obey the Powers That Be] (138)

Glossary

143

Index

145