Chapter II. Theses Possibly or Actually Attributable to Lessing

§1. The subjective existing thinker has regard to the dialectics of the process of communication 67

§2. The existing subjective thinker is in his existential relation to the truth as negative as he is positive; he has as much humor as he has essential pathos; and he is constantly in process of becoming, i.e. he is always striving 74

§3. Lessing has said that accidental historical truths can never serve as proofs for eternal truths of the reason; and that the transition by which it is proposed to base an eternal truth upon historical testimony is a leap 86

§4. Lessing has said that, if God held all truth in His right hand, and in His left the lifelong pursuit of it, he would choose the left hand 97

A. A logical system is possible 99

B. An existential system is impossible 107

PART TWO

HOW THE SUBJECTIVITY OF THE INDIVIDUAL MUST BE QUALIFIED IN ORDER THAT THE PROBLEM MAY EXIST FOR HIM

Chapter I. The Task of Becoming Subjective. The conclusion that would be forced upon ethics if the attainment of subjectivity were not the highest task confronting a human being—Considerations left out of account in connection with the closer understanding of this—Examples of thinking directed towards becoming subjective 115

Chapter II. The Subjective Truth, Inwardness; Truth is Subjectivity 169

Appendix. A Glance at a Contemporary Effort in Danish Literature 225

Chapter III. Real or Ethical Subjectivity—The Subjective Thinker

§1. Existence and Reality 267

PAGE

§2. Possibility as higher than Reality—Reality as higher than Possibility—Poetic and Intellectual Ideality—Ethical Ideality 282

§3. The Simultaneity of the Individual Factors of Subjectivity in the Existing Subject—The Contrast between this Simultaneity and the Speculative Process 307

§4. The Subjective Thinker—his Task, his Form, his Style 312

Chapter IV. The Problem of the Fragments: How can an Eternal Happiness be based upon Historical Knowledge? 323

Section I. For Orientation in the Plan of the FRAGMENTS 323

§1. That the point of departure was taken in the pagan consciousness, and why 323

§2. The importance of a preliminary agreement concerning what Christianity is, before there can be any question of mediating between Christianity and speculative thought. The absence of such an agreement favors the proposal of mediation, while at the same time making any mediation illusory; the presence of such an agreement precludes mediation 330

§3. The problem of the Fragments viewed as a problem, introductory not to Christianity, but to becoming a Christian 340

Section II. The Problem Itself. The eternal happiness of the individual is decided in time through the relationship to something historical, which is furthermore of such a character as to include in its composition that which by virtue of its essence cannot become historical, and must therefore become such by virtue of the absurd 345

A. Existential Pathos

§1. The Initial Expression for Existential Pathos: the absolute direction (respect) toward the absolute telos, expressed in action through the transformation of the individual's existence—Aesthetic Pathos—The deceptiveness of the principle of mediation—The medieval monastic movement—The simultaneous maintenance of an absolute relationship to the absolute telos and a relative relationship to the relative ends 347

PAGE

§2. The Essential Expression for Existential Pathos: Suffering—Fortune and misfortune as the expression for an aesthetic view of life, in contradistinction to suffering as the expression of a religious view (illustrated by reference to the religious discourse)—The reality of suffering (humor)—The reality of suffering in the last instance as evidence for the possession by the existing individual of a relationship to an eternal happiness—The illusion of religiosity—The category of Anfechtung—The primary ground and significance of the religious suffering: the dying away from the life of immediacy while still remaining in the finite—An edifying divertissement—Humor as an incognito for religiosity 386

§3. The Decisive Expression for existential pathos: Guilt—That the investigation goes backward instead of forward—The eternal recollection of guilt is the highest expression for the relation between the consciousness of guilt and an eternal happiness—Lower expressions for the consciousness of guilt, and corresponding forms of satisfaction—Self-imposed penance—Humor—The religiosity of hidden inwardness 468

Intermediate Clause between A and B 493

B. The Dialectical

§1. The dialectical contradiction which constitutes the breach: to expect an eternal happiness in time through a relationship to something else in time 505

§2. The dialectical contradiction that an eternal happiness is based upon something historical 508

§3. The dialetical contradiction that the historical fact here in question is not a simple historical fact, but is constituted by that which only against its nature can become historical, hence by virtue of the absurd 512

Appendix to B. The retroactive effect of the dialectical upon the pathetic, and the factors simultaneously present in this pathos 515

(a) The consciousness of sin 516

(b) The possibility of offense 518

(c) The smart of sympathy 519
