

---

Contents

Translator's Introduction	vii
Reflections on the Linguistic Foundation of Sociology: The Christian Gauss Lecture (Princeton University, February–March 1971)	1
I Objectivist and Subjectivist Approaches to Theory Formation in the Social Sciences	3
II The Phenomenological Constitutive Theory of Society: The Fundamental Role of Claims to Validity and the Monadological Foundations of Intersubjectivity	23
III From a Constitutive Theory to a Communicative Theory of Society (Sellars and Wittgenstein): Communicative and Cognitive Uses of Language	45
IV Universal Pragmatics: Reflections on a Theory of Communicative Competence	67
V Truth and Society: The Discursive Redemption of Factual Claims to Validity	85
Intentions, Conventions, and Linguistic Interactions (1976)	105
Reflections on Communicative Pathology (1974)	129

Contents

Notes	171
Index	183