

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	v
Notes on Contributors	vii
Introduction	1

I. History

Augustine's Roman Empire Neil B. McLynn	29
Thinking through History: Augustine's Method in the City of God and Its Ciceronian Dimension G. J. P. O'Daly	45
Terrarum Orbi Documentum : Augustine, Camillus, and Learning from History Catherine Conybeare	59
City of the Outcast and City of the Elect: The Romulean Asylum in Augustine's City of God and Servius's Commentaries on Virgil Philippe Bruggisser	75
Augustine's Use of Sallust in the City of God : The Role of the Grammatical Tradition Paul C. Burns	105
The Uses of Decay: History in Salvian's De gubernatione dei David Lambert	115

II. Apocalypse

Approaching the Apocalypse: Augustine, Tyconius, and John's Revelation Paul B. Harvey, Jr.	133
--	-----

The End of the City and the City without End: The City of God as Revelation Harry O. Maier	153
Moulding the Present: Apocalyptic as Hermeneutics in City of God 21–22 Karla Pollmann	165
An Immoderate Feast: Augustine Reads John’s Apocalypse Virginia Burrus	183
The Pleasure of Hell in City of God 21 Thomas A. Smith	195
Adapted Discourse: Heaven in Augustine’s City of God and in His Contemporary Preaching J. Kevin Coyle	205
Augustine and the Adversary: Strategies of Synthesis in Early Medieval Exegesis Kevin L. Hughes	221
 III. The Secular Imagination
Civitas to Congregation: Augustine’s Two Cities and John Bale’s Image of Both Churches Gretchen E. Minton	237
The Citie of God (1610) and the London Virginia Company Mark Vessey	257
Is the Augustinian Heaven Inhuman? The Arguments of Martin Heidegger and Hannah Arendt Peter J. Burnell	283
Hannah Arendt’s Secular Augustinianism Joanna Vecchiarelli Scott	293
John Milbank, Augustine, and the “Secular” Michael J. Hollerich	311
Index of Passages Cited from the City of God	327