

CONTENTS

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL PREFACE / ix

INTRODUCTION / xi – xv

I. CAVEATS / 1

1. Physicalism and Direct Realism / 6
2. Adverbialism / 19
3. Acts and Objects / 26
 - i. The Argument from Ambiguity / 27
 - ii. The Argument from Introspection / 27
 - iii. The Argument from Process / 31
 - iv. The Argument from Performatives / 34
 - v. The Argument from Intentional Non-Existence / 35
4. Whither Direct Realism? / 36

II. THE SENSORY SCENE / 49

1. The Argument for Immediacy / 50
2. The Argument from Infallibility / 60
3. The Argument from Conceptual Frameworks / 65
4. The Very Idea of Direct Realism / 70

III. QUALITATIVE APPEARING / 77

1. The Sensum Theory / 77
2. The Compound Thing Theory / 86
3. The Multiple Inherence Theory / 91
4. The Multiple Relation Theory / 94
5. The Impasse: A Look Backward / 98
6. The Multiple Relation Theory Revisited: Major Objections / 101
7. Direct Realism and the Multiple Relation Theory Reconciled / 103

IV. ILLUSION / III

1. The Received Answers: Direct Realists Manqué / 112
2. No Intrinsic Difference: Another Interpretation / 117
3. Descriptive Neutrality and Direct Realism / 121
4. Indeterminate Perceptual Objects: The Speckled Hen Example / 123
5. The Phantom Limb Objection / 125

V. TIME LAG / 131

1. The Received Answers / 132
2. A New Beginning / 138
3. Obstacles and Objections / 142
4. Common Sense and Causation / 143
5. Microparticles: Causation's Last Resort / 148
6. Color Perception: A Counterexample / 150

VI. PHENOMENALISM / 157

1. Classical Phenomenalism: Mill / 161
2. Varieties of Phenomenalism: Hume / 170
3. Phenomenalism and Logical Constructions: Russell / 175
4. Phenomenalism: A Budget of Difficulties / 181
5. The Anomaly of Phenomenalism / 186

INDEX 193