

CONTENTS

Preface

vii

PART ONE

MYSTERIES, PROBLEMS, AND UNANSWERABLE QUESTIONS

I. The Mystery of Existence	3
Statement of the Problem	3
Contemporary Viewpoints	7
The Program of the Present Work	10
II. The Meanings of "Mystery"	14
Ordinary Usages	14
Secret Rites: Eleusinian Mysteries	16
Plato's Use of Mystery-Terminology	19
Mystery and Theology; Philo Judaeus	21
Mystery in Christianity	23
Colloquial Adaptations and Philosophic Uses	26
"Problems" and "Mystery"; Marcel	27
III. Are There Unanswerable Questions?	33
THE PRINCIPLE OF ANSWERABILITY	33
Types of Unanswerability	34
The Positivist Criterion of Verifiability	37
The Irrelevancy of the Positivist Criterion to the Mystery of Existence	41
Emotive Meaning and Cognitive Meaning	43
The Type of Unanswerability Belonging to the Mystery of Existence	44
"WHY IS THERE SOMETHING RATHER THAN NOTHING?"	45

PART TWO

THE WORLD EXISTS

IV. The World	51
THE UNIVERSE FOR SCIENTIFIC COSMOLOGY	53
The Scope of Scientific Cosmology	53
The Observed Universe	54
Cosmological Models	56
The Cognitive Worth of Cosmological Models	57
Two Principal Meanings of "The Universe"	58
The Meaning of "Whole"	59
Is the Universe a Whole?	60
THE WORLD AS KNOWN AND UNKNOWN	63
Can the World Be Identified Demonstratively?	64
On Describing the World	65
The World as an Absolute Totality	66
The Meaning of "The World"	69
V. The World Exists	72
"EXISTS" IS NOT A PREDICATE"	73
The Kantian Treatment of the Question	73
The Concept of "The World" and the Awareness of Existence	77
The Classification of the Statement "The World Exists"	80
The Approach to "Existence" in Modern Logic	84
Existence and Status-Claims	90
"EXISTS" AS DESCRIPTIVE OF THE WORLD	91

PART THREE

"WHY DOES THE WORLD EXIST?"

VI. The Theistic Answer	103
The Leibnizian Appeal to the Principle of Sufficient Reason	105

CONTENTS

xi

The Cosmological Argument: The Thomistic Version	107
The Incompleteness of Ordinary Causal Explanations	108
The Contingency of Finite Beings and the Necessary Existence of God	115
Some Recent Versions of the Cosmological Argument	120
VII. Can Science Establish That the Universe Had an Origin in Time?	126
"Origin of the Universe" and "Age of the Universe"	128
Problems Connected with Determining the Age of the Universe	131
Is the Concept of "the Origin of the Universe" Meaningful?	134
The Untenability of the Concept of "the Origin of the Universe"	136
VIII. The Contingency of the World	142
"There Might Have Been Nothing"	144
Critique of the Concept "Nothing"	145
". . . Might Not Have Been"	152
"The World Might Not Have Been"	155
IX. Is the Existence of the World Necessary?	160
Spinoza's View of Nature (or God)	161
"Necessary Existence"	164
The Necessary Existence of God (or Nature)	168
Critique of the Concept of "Necessary Existence"	169

PART FOUR

MYSTERY AND AGNOSTICISM

X. "Reasons" and "Rational Method"	177
The Meanings of "Reason"	178
Rational Method	189

XI.	Reason and the World's Existence	194
	THERE IS NO REASON FOR THE WORLD'S EXISTENCE	194
	The World is Not a Statement	194
	The World is Neither an Occurrence nor a Regularity	197
	The World is Not Something Made	201
	The Irrelevancy of Reason to the Existence of the World	209
	IS THERE A REASON-FOR-THE-EXISTENCE-OF-THE- WORLD?	211
XII.	Philosophical Agnosticism	220
	Common Sense	221
	Science	222
	Religious Experience	223
	Philosophy	226
XIII.	Some Possible Objections	255
	Index	265