

CONTENTS.

PART FIRST.

THE HISTORICAL GROWTH OF THE ROMAN LAW.

PERIOD I.

FROM THE EARLIEST TIMES TO THE CODIFICATION OF THE TWELVE TABLES.

	PAGE
CHAPTER I.— The Organization of Early Roman Society	3
1. The early Roman family	5
2. The Roman gens	7
3. The Roman populus	8
4. The Plebeian element	9
5. The Consular or Republican government	11
CHAPTER II.— The Beginnings of the Ancient Jus Civile	14
1. Character of the earliest sanctions	14
2. The rise of civil jurisdiction	15
3. The earliest civil procedure	17
4. The growth of legal conveyance	19
5. The nature of early Quiritarian rights	21
CHAPTER III.— The Character of the Twelve Tables	25
1. The law of procedure	26
2. The law regarding family relations	29
3. The law relating to succession	33
4. The law relating to property	37
5. The law respecting injuries	40
6. General character of the XII Tables	43

PERIOD II.

FROM THE CODIFICATION OF THE TWELVE TABLES TO THE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE EMPIRE.

CHAPTER I.— The Enlargement of the State and the Extension of the Franchise	47
1. The equalization of the orders— jus civitatis	47
2. The pacification of Latium— jus Latii	49
3. The reduction of Italy— jus Italicum	50
4. The conquest of the provinces— jus provinciarum	52
5. The civil wars and Roman citizenship	55
CHAPTER II.— The Roman Prætor and the Earlier Jus Gentium	59
1. The jurisdiction of the prætor	59
2. The character of the prætorian edicts	61
3. The functions of the prætor peregrinus	63
4. The growth of the earlier jus gentium	65
5. Relation of the jus gentium to the jus civile	69
CHAPTER III.— The Improvement of the Roman Law during the Republican Period	72
1. Extension of the civil capacity of persons	72
2. The prætorian law of possession	74
3. Acquisition of property ex jure gentium	76
4. Changes in the law of succession	78
5. Growth of the law regarding contracts	80
6. Reforms in the law of procedure	84

PERIOD III.

FROM THE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE EMPIRE TO THE ACCESSION OF DIOCLETIAN.

CHAPTER I.— The Establishment of the Imperial System	91
1. The position of the Emperor	91
2. The relation of the Senate to the Emperor	93
3. The position of the Comitia	94
4. The new imperial offices	95
5. The judicial system of the empire	96
CHAPTER II.— The Sources of Legislation under the Early Empire	98

1. The enactments of the people	98
2. The decrees of the senate	100
3. The edict of the prætor	100
4. The responses of the jurists	102
5. The constitutions of the emperor	104
CHAPTER III.— The Stoic Philosophy and the Later Jus Gen-
tium	107
1. The Stoic philosophy at Rome	108
2. The Stoic theory of "natural law"	109
3. Acceptance of this theory by the jurists	110
4. New meaning attached to jus gentium	112
5. The later jus gentium viewed as equity	113
CHAPTER IV.— The Influence of the Jurisconsults upon the
Roman Law	116
1. The method of the jurists	116
2. Definitions and maxims of the law	118
3. The reason of the law— ratio legis	120
4. Restrictive and extensive interpretation	122
5. The jurists and indirect legislation	124
6. The jurists and direct legislation	127

PERIOD IV.

FROM THE ACCESSION OF DIOCLETIAN TO THE FINAL
CODIFICATION OF THE LAW BY JUSTINIAN.

CHAPTER I.— The Re-organization of the Imperial System
1. Failure of the Augustan constitution	135
2. The orientalizing of the empire	137
3. Reorganization of the provinces	138
4. The forms of legislation	139
5. The character of the judicature	140
CHAPTER II.— The Relation of Christianity to the Empire and
to Legislation	143
1. The triumph of Christianity	143
2. Relation of the church to the state	144
3. Immunities and privileges of the clergy	145
4. The judicial authority of the clergy	146
5. Christianity and legislation	148

CHAPTER III.— The Final Codification of the Roman Law	154
1. The pre-Justinian codes of the East	154
2. The Roman codes in the West	156
3. The final codification by Justinian	158
4. General character of the Corpus Juris	162

PERIOD V.

FROM THE CODIFICATION OF THE LAW BY JUSTINIAN TO THE PRESENT TIME.

CHAPTER I.— The Roman Law during the Middle Ages	167
1. Its continuance in the Eastern Empire	168
2. Its preservation in the barbarian kingdoms	169
3. The Roman law and the feudal system	171
4. The Roman law and the mediæval Empire	174
5. The Roman law and the mediæval Church	176

CHAPTER II.— The Revival of the Study of the Roman Law from the Twelfth Century	181
1. The school of Bologna in Italy	182
2. The study of the Roman law in France	183
3. Its study in Holland	185
4. Its study in Germany	187
5. Its study in England	189

CHAPTER III.— The Roman Element in Modern Jurisprudence	192
1. The modern civil law on the Continent	193
2. The Roman element in the English law	198
3. The Roman law and the modern canon law	203
4. The Roman law and modern international law	207
5. The spread of Roman law by colonization	210

PART SECOND.

THE GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF THE ROMAN LAW.

INTRODUCTION.— Fundamental Concepts and Divisions of the Law	219
1. Justice and law	219
2. Natural law and positive law	221
3. Written law and unwritten law	222

- | | |
|---|-----|
| 4. Public law and private law | 223 |
| 5. Law relating to persons, to things, and to actions | 224 |

BOOK I.

THE LAW OF PERSONS—JUS PERSONARUM.

CHAPTER I.— Persons with reference to Liberty	229
1. The legal idea of person and status	229
2. Freedom as a condition of personality	232
3. Legal status of slaves— servi	233
4. Legal status of freedmen— libertini	236
5. Status of free-born persons— ingenui	237
CHAPTER II.— Persons with reference to Family Relations	239
1. The power of the father over the child	240
2. The nature of Roman marriage	243
3. The conditions of legal marriage	246
4. The legal effects of marriage	247
5. The dos and donatio propter nuptias	248
6. Divorce and its legal effects	249
CHAPTER III.— Persons with reference to Guardianship	252
1. Different kinds of tutors	253
2. Powers and duties of tutors	255
3. The law relating to curators	257
4. Protection against tutors and curators	260
CHAPTER IV.— Artificial Persons—Corporations	262
1. Nature and kinds of artificial persons	262
2. Legal status of corporations	264
3. Creation and dissolution of corporations	265

BOOK II.

THE LAW OF THINGS—JUS RERUM.

TITLE I.—THE LAW OF OWNERSHIP.

CHAPTER I.— Things as the Objects of Ownership	269
1. The legal idea of res or thing	270
2. Things as to their legal capacity	271
3. Things as to their general qualities	273
4. Things as to their mode of designation	275
5. Things as to their mutual relations	276

CHAPTER II.— General Right of Ownership—Dominium	279
1. Growth of property as a legal right	280
2. Elements involved in ownership, or dominium	282
3. Different forms of ownership	283
4. Possession and its relation to ownership	285
CHAPTER III.— Subordinate Rights of Ownership—Jura in Re	288
1. General features of jura in re	288
2. Prædial servitudes—rural and urban	289
3. Personal servitudes—usufruct, use	292
4. Emphyteusis and superficies	294
5. Pignus and hypotheca	297
CHAPTER IV.— Acquisition of Ownership in Single Things	302
1. Occupation—its principles and application	303
2. Accession—its character and different forms	304
3. Tradition—its requisites and various modes	307
4. Prescription—its origin and principles	309
CHAPTER V.— Acquisition of Ownership by Inheritance	313
1. The nature of inheritance	313
2. The position and functions of the heir	315
3. The character and forms of the testament	318
4. Necessary contents of the testament	322
5. Modes of invalidating the testament	326
6. Inheritance ab intestato	329
7. Legacies, fidei-commissa , and codicils	334
TITLE II.—THE LAW OF OBLIGATIONS.
CHAPTER I.— General Character of Obligations	341
1. Nature of obligation as a personal right	342
2. The subject-matter of obligations	344
3. Accessory liability in obligations	348
4. Classification of obligations	350
CHAPTER II.— Obligations arising ex Contractu	352
1. Essential features of a contract	352
2. Real contracts, or those made re	355
3. Verbal contracts, or those made verbis	358
4. Literal contracts, or those made litteris	390
5. Consensual contracts, or those made consensu	361
6. Obligations arising quasi ex contractu	371

7. Dissolution of contract-obligations	372
CHAPTER III.— Obligations arising ex delicto	374
1. Delict as a ground of obligation	374
2. General features of a delict	376
3. Different kinds of delicts	377
4. Obligations arising quasi ex delicto	383

BOOK III.

THE LAW OF ACTIONS—JUS ACTIONUM.

CHAPTER I.— The Character of Civil Remedies	387
1. The Roman judicature	388
2. Various classes of actions	391
3. Exceptions and replications	396
4. Interdicts and their different forms	398
5. Restitution and its various grounds	400
6. The private protection of rights	402
CHAPTER II.— The Elements of Civil Procedure	404
1. Beginning of a civil action	406
2. Joining of issue—pleadings	408
3. Trial and the principles of evidence	410
4. Judgment and appeal	412
5. Execution of judgment	413
APPENDIX	417
INDEX	425