Contents

Preface vii
Nancy Tuana

Acknowledgments xi

Introduction: Why Feminists Read Nietzsche 1
Kelly Oliver and Marilyn Pearsall

Part One: Nietzsche's Use of Women

1 Baubô: Theological Perversion and Fetishism 21
   Sarah Kofman
   Translated by Tracy B. Strong

2 The Question of Style 50
   Jacques Derrida
   Translated by Ruben Berezdivin

3 Woman as Truth in Nietzsche's Writing 66
   Kelly Oliver

4 Veiled Lips 81
   Luce Irigaray
   Translated by Sara Speidel

5 Nietzsche and Feminism: Transvaluing Women in 119
   Thus Spoke Zarathustra
   Tamsin Lorraine
vi  Contents

6 Gender in The Gay Science
Kathleen Marie Higgins 130

7 Ecce Homo: Abjection and “the Feminine”
Jean Graybeal 152

Part Two: Feminists’ Use of Nietzsche

8 Nietzschean Mythologies: The Inversion of Value and the War Against Women
Linda Singer 173

9 Nietzsche’s Misogyny
Maudemarie Clark 187

10 Sexual Dualism and Women’s Self-Creation: On the Advantages and Disadvantages of Reading Nietzsche for Feminists
Lynne Tirrell 199

11 Nietzsche Was No Feminist . . .
Debra B. Bergoffen 225

12 Nietzsche’s Women and Women’s Nietzsche
Kathleen J. Wininger 236

13 The Slave Revolt in Epistemology
Daniel W. Conway 252

14 Nietzsche’s Politics
Ofelia Schutte 282

15 Nietzsche’s Squandered Seductions: Feminism, the Body, and the Politics of Genealogy
David Owen 306

Select Bibliography
Contributors
Index