

CONTENTS

PREFACE	VII
ACKNOWLEDGMENTS	X
INTRODUCTION	XII

SECTION I

CHAPTER 1	3	Looking at the Back of a Thing: The Potential Plurality of Husserl's Transcendental Ego
CHAPTER 2	10	Transcendental Reflection without a Transcendental Ego
CHAPTER 3	21	The Vertical Intentionality of Time-Consciousness and Sense-Giving
CHAPTER 4	37	Perception and Imagination: The Point of Contact between Phenomenology and Ontology

SECTION II

CHAPTER 5	67	Immanence and Transcendence to the Monad and Religiousness
CHAPTER 6	85	The Monad and the Poem: Toward a Phenomenological Analysis of the Japanese Haiku
CHAPTER 7	103	The Monad and Others: The Fundamental Congruency of Leib and Körper

SECTION III

CHAPTER 8 125

Review of Modern Philosophical Theories of the Body

CHAPTER 9 144

On the Relation between Science and Technology

CHAPTER 10 158

The Phenomenological Ontology of Power: The Being of Things and the Being of the Fundamental Life-World (Monad)

SECTION IV

CHAPTER 11 173

Some Problems Concerning the I-Thou Relation

CHAPTER 12 189

The Phenomenology of Thou

SECTION V

CHAPTER 13 205

The "I-Thou" Relationship in Modern Japanese Philosophy

CHAPTER 14 217

Some Phenomenological Elements of the Japanese Cultural Tradition

NOTES 227

INDEX 243