

CONTENTS

Preface	II
Introduction	13
I Logical relations and the theoretical and linguistic conceptions of reason	17
1. Logic and propositions: the theoretical conception of reason	17
2. Logic and non-propositions	20
3. Logic and action	22
4. Logic and meaning: the linguistic conception of reason	23
5. A dilemma for the linguistic conception	25
6. Inference and action	28
7. Imperative inference: a condition	31
8. Hume: reason's role in action	33
9. Reason and reality, liberalism and romanticism	35
2 Psychological verbs and the practical conception of reason	37
1. Logical and psychological verbs	37
2. The practical conception of reason	39

3.	Saying and what is said	40
4.	Mental acts: two kinds of thinking	43
5.	Thinking, believing, and action	44
6.	Episodic thinking and believing	45
7.	Uninterpreted logical calculi as games	48
3	Logical appraisal and the appraisal of belief	49
1.	Logical appraisal	49
2.	Philosophical obstacles: the problem of theoretical reason	50
3.	Appraisal of beliefs and inferences	52
4.	Do appraisals of belief guide choices?	55
5.	Pragmatic appraisals of belief	56
6.	Things appraised and things guided: normative and non-normative appraisals	58
7.	Pragmatic appraisals and reasons for believing	60
8.	Getting oneself to believe something	63
9.	The thinking that makes it so	65
10.	Truth and reason, pragmatic and otherwise	66
11.	Logical appraisal and appraising the logic of something	67
12.	Anti-psychologism	67
13.	Content, meaning, and force	69
14.	The substantivity of logical principles	73
15.	Conditions of inference	76
16.	Non-substantive logical principles	77
17.	Criteria of substantivity	78
18.	The non-substantivity of errors of meaning	80
19.	Belief and the autonomy of values	83
20.	What is wrong with thinking inconsistent things?	84
21.	The normative implications of any proposition	85
22.	The logic of belief: a schematic outline	89
23.	Belief and moral appraisal	92.

Contents	9
24. Belief and action: similarities and differences	95
25. An essential limitation on the moral appraisal of belief	97
26. The effects of belief from the believer's point of view	98
27. Other kinds of moral appraisal: the moral appraisal of belief	99
4 Logic and action: the concept of practical reason	102
1. Reasons and what they are for	102
2. Reasons, logical relations, and action	106
3. The basic logical relation in action	110
4. The generic relation of conformity between action and description	112
5. The normative aspect of the logical relation	113
6. The analytic aspect of the logical relation	116
7. The possibility of doing what is inconsistent with one's practical judgments	118
8. How there can be reasons for doing things, though actions cannot be conclusions of arguments	122
9. Imperatives and practical judgments as answers to questions of what to do	126
10. The meaning of the word 'ought'	132
11. Hypothetical imperatives	137
12. The explanatory role of a person's reasons	147
5 The faculty of reason	153
1. The general nature of reason	153
2. Presuppositions of reasons for believing	155
3. Doing and wanting	157
4. Wanting without reason	158
5. Ultimate wants and reasons for doing things	159
6. Equally reasonable alternatives in conduct	163
7. Equally reasonable beliefs	165

8. Imperative and indicative logic	169
9. The indicative analogy of action: belief or truth?	170
10. Fulfilment-conditions, acceptance-conditions, and modality	173
Index	177