

CONTENTS

Introduction, 1

Sources of the philosopher's concern with language: metaphysics, 1. Logic, 3. Epistemology, 4. Reform of language, 5. Philosophy as analysis, 6. Problems of the philosophy of language, 8.

1

Theories of Meaning, 10

The problem of meaning, 10. Types of theories of meaning, 11. The referential theory, 12. Meaning and reference, 13. Do all meaningful expressions refer to something? 14. Denotation and connotation, 16. Meanings as a kind of entity, 19. The ideational theory, 22. Meaning as a function of situation and response, 25. Meaning as a function of behavioral dispositions, 28. Summary of discussion of behavioral theory, 30.

2

Meaning and the Use of Language, 32

Meaning as a function of use, 32. Types of linguistic action, 34. Word meaning, 36. Analysis of illocutionary acts, 39. Rules of language, 41. Problems concerning synonymy, 44. Emotive meaning, 47. Problems about illocutionary acts, 48.

3

Language and Its Near Relations, 50

The generic notion of a sign, 50. Regularity of correlation and regularity of usage, 54. Icon, index, and symbol, 55. The notion of convention, 56. Icons, pure and impure, 58. Language as a system of symbols, 59.

4

Empiricist Criteria of Meaningfulness, 62

Meaningless sentences, 62. Traditional form of an empiricist criterion, 63. The semantic stratification of language, 67. Logical atomism, 68. Verifiability theory of meaning, 69. Deficiencies in usual formulations of verifiability criterion, 73. Problems in the formulation of the verifiability criterion, 76. Verifiability criterion as description and as proposal, 77. Arguments in support of verifiability criterion, 79. Final assessment, 82.

5

Dimensions of Meaning, 84

What vagueness is, 84. Kinds of vagueness: degree and combination of conditions, 87. Is absolute precision possible? 90. Precision through quantification, 91. Open texture, 93. Importance of the notion of vagueness, 95. Metaphorical and other figurative uses of expressions, 96. The nature of metaphor, 98. Basis of the literal-metaphorical distinction, 99. Irreducible metaphors: God and inner feelings, 103.

For Further Reading, 107