Contents

PART ONE: THE CONTEMPORARY DEBATE

1. Can Democracy Be Just Anything? 3
   1.1 The Age of Confused Democracy 3
   1.2 Description and Prescription 7
   1.3 Political and Other Democracies 8
   1.4 Outline 12
   1.5 A Coda on Theory 15

2. Etymological Democracy 21
   2.1 The Meaning of People 21
   2.2 The People in Mass Society 25
   2.3 Power of the People and Power over the People 28
   2.4 Limited Majority Rule 31
   2.5 The Lincoln Formula 34

3. The Limits of Political Realism 39
   3.1 What Is Pure Politics? 39
   3.2 Warlike versus Peacelike Politics 41
   3.3 Facts and Values in Benedetto Croce 44
   3.4 Mosca, Pareto, and Michels 46
   3.5 Realism versus Rationalism 48
   3.6 Rational Democracy and Empirical Democracy 51

4. Perfectionism and Utopia 58
   4.1 The Misunderstanding of Deontology 58
   4.2 Myth and Utopia Reconsidered 60
   4.3 Self-Government and the Politically Impossible 64
   4.4 The Role of Ideals 67
   4.5 Maximization, Opposite Danger, and Inverted Results 69
   4.6 The Revolution as Myth 72
   4.7 Ideals and Evidence 77
THE THEORY OF DEMOCRACY REVISITED

5. Governed Democracy and Governing Democracy 86
  5.1 Public Opinion and Government by Consent 86
  5.2 The Issue of Consensus 89
  5.3 The Formation of Opinions 92
  5.4 Autonomy versus Heteronomy of Public Opinion 96
  5.5 Electoral Democracy 102
  5.6 Participatory Democracy 111
  5.7 Referendum Democracy and Knowledge 115
  5.8 Government and Ungovernability 120

6. Vertical Democracy 131
  6.1 Majority Principle and Minority Rule 131
  6.2 The Tyranny of the Majority 133
  6.3 Election, Selection, and Mal-Selection 137
  6.4 Minorities and Elites 141
  6.5 Minority Rule: From Mosca to Dahl 145
  6.6 The Iron Law of Oligarchy 148
  6.7 The Competitive Theory of Democracy 152
  6.8 Anti-Elitism Revisited 156
  6.9 Polyarchy Defined Normatively 163

7. What Democracy Is Not 182
  7.1 Contraries, Contradictories, and Degrees 182
  7.2 Authoritarianism, Authority, and Power 185
  7.3 Total State, Democracy, and Absolutism 190
  7.4 Totalitarianism 193
  7.5 Dictatorship and Autocracy 203

8. A Decision-Making Theory of Democracy 214
  8.1 The Nature of Political Decisions 214
  8.2 External Risks and Decisional Costs 216
  8.3 Outcomes and Decisional Contexts 223
  8.4 Intensity of Preference and Majority Rule 225
  8.5 Committees and Unanimity 227
  8.6 Committees, Participation, and Demo-Distribution 232
  8.7 Consociational Democracy 238
  8.8 A Coda on the Cost of Idealism 240
PART TWO: THE CLASSICAL ISSUES

   9.1 Are Definitions Arbitrary? 257
   9.2 A Criticism of Conventionalism 260
   9.3 Words as Experience Carriers 265
   9.4 The Search for Proof 267
   9.5 A Comparative Evaluation 271

10. Greek Democracy and Modern Democracy 278
   10.1 Homonymy, Not Homology 278
   10.2 Direct or Polis Democracy 280
   10.3 Individualism and Freedom: Old and New 284
   10.4 The Modern Idea and Ideal 287
   10.5 A Reversal of Perspectives 290

11. Liberty and Law 298
   11.1 Freedom and Freedoms 298
   11.2 Political Freedom 301
   11.3 Liberal Freedom 306
   11.4 The Supremacy of Law in Rousseau 310
   11.5 Autonomy: A Criticism 315
   11.6 The Principle of Diminishing Consequences 320
   11.7 From the Rule of Law to the Rule of Legislators 321

12. Equality 337
   12.1 A Protest Ideal 337
   12.2 Justice and Sameness 338
   12.3 Predemocratic and Democratic Equalities 341
   12.4 Equal Opportunities and Equal Circumstances 344
   12.5 Egalitarian Criteria, Treatments, and Outcomes 347
   12.6 The Maximization of Equality 352
   12.7 Liberty and Equality 357

13. Liberism, Liberalism, and Democracy 367
   13.1 Overlaps 367
   13.2 An Unfortunate Timing 370
   13.3 Property and Possessive Individualism 376
   13.4 Liberalism Defined 379