
Contents

Preface by Jacques Lacan	vii
Foreword by Antoine Vergote	xvi
Acknowledgments	xxiv
Introduction	1
Synthesis of Lacanian thought	6

Part One

Some elements and some problems of general linguistics

1 Debates as to the nature of the linguistic sign and their methodological consequences	12
2 The two great axes of language	30

Part Two

Lacan's use of the general data of linguistics

3 The Lacanian perspective in linguistics	38
4 Philosophy of language in Jacques Lacan	51

Part Three

The constitution of the subject by accession to the symbolic – the Spaltung – the role of the Oedipus in this transition

5 The Spaltung	67
6 'Splitting', otherwise known as 'Separation' (Introduction to the alienating identifications, the imaginary and the neuroses)	72
7 The role of the Oedipus in accession to the symbolic	78

Part Four

The engendering of the unconscious by primal repression (or accession to language) in accordance with the process of metaphor

8 The constituting metaphor of the unconscious	96
9 Critical study of the article, 'The unconscious: a psychoanalytic study' by J. Laplanche and S. Leclaire. Clarifications as to Lacan's thought	113

Part Five

The elementary signifiers constituting the unconscious

10	The unconscious as second structure	135
11	The elementary signifiers of the unconscious	139
12	Structure, organization and functioning of the unconscious order in Freud	153

Part Six

The transition from lack to desire and to demand

13	From need (or lived lack) to the instinct and desire: accession to language	161
14	From desire to demand	169
15	The dialectic of identifications	176

Part Seven

The mechanisms of the formations of the unconscious: structure and organization of the unconscious signifying network

16	The revelatory formations of the unconscious	187
17	The mechanisms of the formations of the unconscious. Displacement and condensation or metonymy and metaphor	191
18	Analysis of unconscious formations following metaphoric and metonymic processes	206

Part Eight

The general conception of the cure in Lacan

19	Language: the primordial indicator of truth in the analytic cure	215
20	The role of the analyst	217
21	Transference	220
22	Interpretation	223

Part Nine

The Lacanian conception of neurosis and psychosis

23	Neurosis	227
24	Psychosis	230

Conclusion	247
------------	-----

Appendix: general purport of a conversation with Lacan in December 1969	249
---	-----

Bibliography	254
--------------	-----

Index	261
-------	-----