

Contents

Foreword by Michael Dodson	ix
Preface	xi
Acknowledgments	xv
The Aboriginal World View
1 The making of Aboriginal identity	2
Aborigines and the Land
2 The future of the homeland movement	24
3 Warlpiri land use and management	32
4 The implications of land rights	39
Aboriginal Lifestyles
5 Economic, social and spiritual factors in Aboriginal health	54
6 Aboriginal education and the issues underlying Aboriginal deaths in custody	66
7 Aboriginal work and economy	76
Aborigines, Resources and Development
8 The ideology of development in the East Kimberley	86
9 Aborigines and resources: from 'humbug' to negotiation	100
10 The McArthur River development: a case in point	111

Aborigines, Law and the State
11 The Yirrkala proposals for the control of law and order	118
12 Aboriginal political leadership and the role of the National Aboriginal Conference	131
13 Aborigines and the Treaty of Waitangi	143
Asserting Autonomy: Recent Aboriginal Initiatives
14 Aboriginal initiatives on the land	156
15 Initiatives in Aboriginal political organisation	171
16 Education: taking control	187
The Recognition of Native Title
17 The Mabo decision: a basis for Aboriginal autonomy?	200
Conclusion
18 Negotiating future autonomy	220
Appendix: The Eva Valley Statement	231
References	235
Select Bibliography of work by H.C. Coombs	241
Index	247