

Contents

Acknowledgments	page ix
List of abbreviations	xi
1 Introduction	1
Part 1 Fragmented citizenship in a colonial frontier society
2 The virtues of Ashkenazi pioneering	37
3 Mizrachim and women: between quality and quantity	74
4 The frontier within: Palestinians as third-class citizens	110
5 The wages of legitimation: Zionist and non-Zionist Orthodox Jews	137
Part 2 The frontier reopens
6 New day on the frontier	159
7 The frontier erupts: the intifadas	184
Part 3 The emergence of civil society
8 Agents of political change	213
9 Economic liberalization and peacemaking	231
10 The “constitutional revolution”	260
11 Shrinking social rights	278

12	Emergent citizenship groups? Immigrants from the FSU and Ethiopia and overseas labor migrants	308
13	Conclusion	335
	Bibliography	349
	Index	387