

CONTENTS

Preface	page xiii
Acknowledgments	xv
INTRODUCTION: FEMINISM AND INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT	I
I. Development and Sex Equality	I
II. The Capabilities Approach: An Overview	4
III. The Capabilities Approach: Sen and Nussbaum	11
IV. Two Women Trying to Flourish	15
V. India: Sex Equality in Theory, Not Reality	24
VI. Sameness and Difference	31
CHAPTER ONE
IN DEFENSE OF UNIVERSAL VALUES	34
I. Challenges to Cross-Cultural Norms	34
II. Three Arguments: Culture, Diversity, Paternalism	41
III. Defects of Standard Economic Approaches	59
IV. Central Human Capabilities	70
V. Functioning and Capability	86
VI. Capabilities and Human Rights	96
VII. Justification and Implementation: Democratic Politics	101
VIII. Capabilities and Women's Lives: A Role for Public Action	106
CHAPTER TWO
ADAPTIVE PREFERENCES AND WOMEN'S OPTIONS	111
I. Preference and the Good: Two Unsatisfactory Extremes	112
II. Problems with the Concept of Preference	119

CONTENTS

III. Welfarism: The Internal Critique	122
IV. Adaptive Preferences and the Rejection of Welfarism	135
V. Desire and Justification	148
VI. Political Stability and the Depth of Habit	161
CHAPTER THREE
THE ROLE OF RELIGION	167
I. Religious Liberty and Sex Equality: A Dilemma	168
II. Secular Humanists and Traditionalists	174
III. Two Orienting Principles	187
IV. Central Capabilities as Compelling State Interests	198
V. Non-Religion, Establishment, Balancing	206
VI. Applying the Approach: The Three Cases	212
VII. Children and Parents	230
VIII. Capabilities and Loss	235
CHAPTER FOUR
LOVE, CARE, AND DIGNITY	241
I. A Home for Love and Violence	242
II. Capabilities: Each Family Member as End	245
III. The Family: Not “by Nature”	252
IV. The Family as Creation of State Action	261
V. Women’s Care Giving: “An Eminently Artificial Thing”	264
VI. Political Liberalism and the Family: Rawls’s Dilemma	270
VII. Bargaining Approaches and Women’s Options	283
VIII. Two Debates in International Feminism	290
CONCLUSION	298
Index	305