

Contents

part I

Introduction: What Are We to Make of Ourselves? 1

1. Wonder, Puzzlement, and Perplexity 3
2. "Know Thyself" 21
3. Fatalism and Its Paradoxes 29
4. The Divided Image of Human Nature 44

part II

The Philosopher as Geometer 51

5. The Claims of Logic 53
6. Philosophy and the City of Truth 82
7. Reasons and Inferences 90
8. The Roads to Skepticism 123

part III

The Philosopher as Anthropologist 141

9. The Claims of Common Sense 143
10. Philosophy and the Human Standpoint 163
11. Reasons and Consensus 172
12. The Roads to Relativism 200

part IV

The Philosopher as Critic 207

13. The Claims of Function 209
14. Rational Procedures and Their Functional Significance 220
15. The Preconditions of Good Reasoning 227
16. The Three Faces of Philosophy 249

part V

Conclusion: On Knowing Our Own Minds 263

17. Philosophy and Human Nature 265
18. Individual and Collective Self-Understanding 285
19. Philosophy and Action 296