

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction: Reclaiming Identity Paula M. L. Moya	I
THE REALIST THEORY OF IDENTITY AND THE PREDICAMENT OF POSTMODERNISM
1. The Epistemic Status of Cultural Identity: On Beloved and the Postcolonial Condition Satya P. Mohanty	29
2. Postmodernism, “Realism,” and the Politics of Identity: Cherríe Moraga and Chicana Feminism Paula M. L. Moya	67
3. “Who Are Our Own People?”: Challenges for a Theory of Social Identity Michael R. Hames-García	102

POSTPOSITIVIST OBJECTIVITY:
USES OF ERROR, VALUES, AND IDENTITY

4. On Representing Others: Intellectuals, Pedagogy, and the Uses of Error
Caroline S. Hau 133
5. “It Matters to Get the Facts Straight”: Joy Kogawa, Realism, and Objectivity of Values
Minh T. Nguyen 171
6. Racial Authenticity and White Separatism: The Future of Racial Program Housing on College Campuses
Amie A. Macdonald 205

REALIST CONCEPTIONS OF AGENCY, EXPERIENCE, AND IDENTITY

7. Who Says Who Says?: The Epistemological Grounds for Agency in Liberatory Political Projects
Brent R. Henze 229
8. Is There Something You Need to Tell Me?: Coming Out and the Ambiguity of Experience
William S. Wilkerson 251
9. Reading “Experience”: The Debate in Intellectual History
among Scott, Toews, and LaCapra
John H. Zammito 279
10. Who’s Afraid of Identity Politics?
Linda Martín Alcoff 312

Contributors 345

Index 347