

Contents

INTRODUCTION	xI
THE LETTER TO D'ALEMBERT ON THE THEATRE
Preface	3
* I. THE DOCTRINE OF THE GENEVA PASTORS	9
A. The Theatre Considered in Relation to What is Performed in It
II. IS THE THEATRE GOOD OR BAD IN ITSELF?	15
III. THE FRENCH THEATRE: TRAGEDY	27
IV. THE FRENCH THEATRE: COMEDY: MOLIERE AND HIS SUCCESSORS	34
V. LOVE AND THE THEATRE	47
B. The Theatre Considered in Relation to the Stage and the Actors
VI. THE THEATRE AND LUXURY	56
VII. THE LAW AND MORALS [MANNERS]	65
VIII. ACTORS AND ACTRESSES	75
C. The Establishment of a Theatre at Geneva
IX. THE THEATRE AND GENEVA'S INSTITUTIONS	92
X. THE THEATRE AND REPUBLICAN VIRTUES	113
XI. ENTERTAINMENTS PROPER FOR A REPUBLIC	123
APPENDIX: THE ARTICLE "GENEVA" FROM l'Encyclopédie	139
TRANSLATOR'S NOTES	149

* The table of contents for the body of the Letter is entirely by the translator. The original has no divisions into chapters and sections. The above division is intended only to help the reader to get a unified view of the whole and, although it attempts to follow the natural articulation of the work, it does not pretend to be an authoritative key to Rousseau's organization.