

Contents

Preface ix

1 Introduction 1

- The Political Context of Moral Responsibility 1
Beyond Free Will and Determinism 14
Philosophical Pragmatism and Social Practice 21

PART ONE

2 Communal Blame and the Classical Worldview 33

- Why We Cannot All Be Kantians 33
Aristotle on the Conditions of Voluntariness 37
The Responsibility of Children 50
Blameworthiness, Communal Standards,
and the Primacy of Moral Luck 52
Volitional Excuses and the Criteria of Blameworthiness 56

3 Transcendental Authority and the Damnation of Christian Sinners 58

- Transcendental Authority Threatened 58
From Communal Accountability to Moral Sin 63
Religious Ascription vs. Scientific Discovery 66

4 Internalized Transcendence and the Modern Moral Conscience 72

- Moral Guilt and the Internalization of Social Blame 72
The Burdens of Free Will 82
Determinism, Moral Luck, and Insufficient Control 92

PART TWO

5 Moral Responsibility and the Prevention of Harm 105

- Shared Starting Points 105

	A Radical Extension of Moral Responsibility	106
	Traditional Constraints and the Deflation of a Radical Theory	117
	The Subjectification of Social Blame	121
6	Social Expectations, Role Playing, and the Primacy of Moral Agency	130
	A Deontological View of Moral Agency	130
	Moral Agency and Social Norms	133
	Social Norms, Role Playing, and the Collapse of a Conservative Perspective	137
7	Moral Agency and the Distribution of Organizational Blame	149
	Moral Blame and Democratic Accountability	149
	Organizational Excuses	153
	Moral Tasks and the Distribution of Power	157
PART THREE
8	Actions, Consequences, and the Boundaries of Community	167
	Alternative Approaches	167
	The Practice of Moral Responsibility	177
	Causal Responsibility and Practical Control	179
	Interests, Expectations, and Social Roles	185
	Causal Responsibility and the Boundaries of Community	195
	Shifting Boundaries	205
	The Problem of Omissions	212
	When Do We Become Killers?	219
9	Private Blame and Public Accountability	225
	Moral Responsibility, Causation, and Blameworthiness	225
	Volitional Excuses and the Question of Fairness	228
	Do We Really Need to Talk about Free Will?	235
	Social Blame and the Regulation of Communal Standards	238
	Blaming, Interests, and the Maintenance of Power	245
	From Public Accountability to Moral Blameworthiness and Back	249
10	Conclusion: Morality and Power	255
	Bibliography	273
	Index	285