

Contents

Preface	xi
1. Introduction: Regional Patterns in a Post-City Age	1
H. V. Savitch and Ronald K. Vogel
Old and New Studies of Regionalism	1
Why Regions?	3
Interdependence Amid Disparity	5
Patterns of Institutional Refraction	11
The Functional City and Regional Politics	16
Part I. Avoidance and Conflict
2. New York: The Politics of Conflict and Avoidance	25
Bruce Berg and Paul Kantor
Introduction	25
The Political Economy of Regional Change	27
The Postindustrial Economy and Regional Interests	29
The Postindustrial Region and Governmental Cooperation	36
Political Entrepreneurship and Regional Cooperation	37
The Only Planning Game in Town:
The Port Authority and Regional Politics	39
The Consequences of Noncooperation:
Policy Voids and Inequality	45
3. Los Angeles: Politics Without Governance	51
Alan L. Saltzstein
I. The Environment of Greater Los Angeles	52
II. Political Organizations of Greater Los Angeles	58
III. Regional Decision Making	62
IV. Toward Regional Government?	69

4. St. Louis: A Politically Fragmented Area	72
Donald Phares and Claude Louishomme
Whither Regional Governance?	72
The St. Louis Area "Functional City"	73
A Profile of the St. Louis Area	75
St. Louis as a Case Study	79
Regional Cooperation or More Fragmentation:
The Power of the Fisc?	81
Regional Versus Local Governance: An Ongoing Tension	83
Governmental Reform Using the Missouri Constitution	84
Toward Comprehensive Governance Reform in St. Louis	85
Enter the Courts: The Legality of Governance
Reorganization in St. Louis	87
Resolution Absent Reform	87
Governance Reform Again?: The 1990 Board of Electors Plan	88
Enter Incremental Reform: A Boundary Commission	89
Existing "Governance" Arrangements in the St. Louis Area	90
The Present Status of Governance and Fiscal Reform
in St. Louis	92
What's Next for Reform in St. Louis?	93

Part II. Mutual Adjustment

5. Washington, D.C.: Cautious and Constrained Cooperation	101
Jeffrey Henig, David Brunori, and Mark Ebert
Profile of the Washington Region	103
The MWCOC: Regional Cooperation, Within Limits	106
Law Enforcement: A Case Study in Cooperation	112
The Impact of the Federal Government on
Regionalism in Its Own Backyard	117
Conclusions	124
6. Louisville: Compacts and Antagonistic Cooperation	130
H. V. Savitch and Ronald K. Vogel
Defining the Functional City: A Regional Profile	131
Regional Development	134
Regional Governance	141
Assessing the Compact	145

The Compact: Metropolitan Government or Governance?	152
Conclusion	154
7. Pittsburgh: Partnerships in a Regional City	159
Louise Jezierski
A Short History of the Pittsburgh Regional Political Economy: From Gateway to Steel to Corporate Headquarters	162
Annexation, Planning, and Consolidation of the Metropolitan Landscape	163
Partnership and Renaissance I: 1943-1970	165
Community Mobilization and the Interlude (1970-1977)	168
Manufacturing Declines and the Regional Economy Restructures	169
Renaissance II: Downtown and Neighborhoods (1978-1988)	171
Renaissance III: High Technology and Services (1982 to the Present)	172
Growing New Regional Economies: Partnerships in a Global Economy	177
Part III. Metropolitan Government
8. Miami: Experiences in Regional Government	185
Genie Stowers
Miami/Dade County in the 1990s	186
Metropolitan Dade County: Fulfillment of a Promise?	190
Metropolitan Dade County—A Success?	195
The “Other Region”	201
Conclusion	203
9. Minneapolis-St. Paul: Structuring Metropolitan Government	206
John J. Harrigan
Positioning for Global Competition	207
Growing Central City/Suburban Disparities	209
The Great Hopes for Metropolitan Governance	213
The Great Hopes Gone Sour	217
Regime Change and the Metropolitan Crisis	219
Tinkering With the System in the 1990s	223
Conclusion	226

10. Jacksonville: Consolidation and Regional Governance	229
Bert Swanson
Introduction	229
Perceptions and Prescriptions of Jacksonville Reformers (The Intervention)	232
Changing Socioeconomic, Political, and Power Profiles of the Jacksonville Metropolis (Pre- and Post-Intervention Consequences)	238
Conclusions	248
11. Portland: The Metropolitan Umbrella	253
Arthur C. Nelson
Introduction	253
Political-Economic Context	254
The Metropolitan Governance Context	257
More Metropolitan Umbrellas?	268
Part IV. Conclusion
12. Perspectives for the Present and Lessons for the Future	275
H. V. Savitch and Ronald K. Vogel
Perspectives	275
Avoidance and Conflict	276
Mutual Adjustment	279
Metropolitan Government	282
Lessons	287
Index	303
About the Authors	307