

Contents

List of Figures and Tables	ix
Preface	x
PART I HISTORICAL STRUCTURES
Introduction	3
International political economy	6
The critical theory of Robert Cox: historical structure	10
Historical structure and stage theory	12
1 The History of Capitalist Expansion	14
The political nature of the capitalist world economy	15
The dialectical development of capitalism as a world system	16
A periodisation of capitalist development and expansion	16
The mercantile phase of European expansion	17
The colonial phase of European expansion	18
Marxist theories of capitalist imperialism	21
Critiques of Marxist theories of imperialism	25
2 Neo-colonialism, Modernisation and Dependency	29
Global economic pressures	29
Domestic tensions	32
Geo-political relations	33
Modernisation theory	35
Dependency theory	37

3	Crisis and Restructuring: The New International Division of Labour	44
	Material capabilities: global Fordism	45
	Neo-colonial economic relations	47
	Economic nationalism in the Third World	48
	Changing geo-political relations	51
	Critical theory: diversity and micro-studies	53
	Gender and development	54
	'Dependency associated' development theory	57
	Postimperialism and world system theories	58

PART II GLOBALISATION

	Introduction	65
4	From Expansion to Implosion	69
	World trade: long-term trends	69
	Foreign direct investment (FDI) and the growth of multinational enterprises	75
	World capital flows: long-term indirect investments	77
	Global financial deepening and the structural position of the Third World	80
	Core-periphery: from structural exploitation to structural irrelevance	84
5	From Fordist to Flexible Production	90
	Fordism	92
	From Fordist to flexible production	93
	The Japanese mode of regulation	101
	Internationalisation or globalisation? The Japanese model in the world economy	102
	The Regulation School	105
	Flexible production and global markets	109
	Flexible production and global enterprise organisation	110
	Flexible production and global capital-labour relations	111

6 Globalisation	114
The sociology of globalisation	116
Roland Robertson: world compression and intensification of global consciousness	116
David Harvey: Time/space compression	118
Anthony Giddens: Time/space distantiation	119
The economics of globalisation	121
A global market discipline	122
Flexible accumulation through global webs	125
Global financial 'deepening'	128
7 Global Regulation	132
Capital–state relations: global governance and the internationalisation of the state	134
Capital–labour relations: the new global world of work	139
Core–periphery relations	144
The politics of exclusion	148
 PART III THE POSTCOLONIAL WORLD
Introduction	153
The postcolonial: condition and discourse	154
Postcolonial formations	159
8 Africa: Exclusion and the Containment of Anarchy	162
Debt and the internationalisation of capital	163
Financial integration and deregulation	164
Debt crisis and solutions: the 1980s	165
The role of the IMF and the World Bank	166
Dismantling the developmental state	168
Structural adjustment in Africa: the social and economic record	170
Structural adjustment: intensifying global relations	171
Democracy and economic reform	172
Economic reform and anarchy	175
The reverse agenda of aid and global management	177
NGOs and the politics of exclusion	178
Humanitarian relief and complex political emergencies	180

9	Islamic Revolt	182
	Spiritual renewal	185
	The West confronts Islam	188
	Education and Orientalisation	191
	The failure of dependent development	193
	The rise of Islamist new intellectuals and the politics of anti-developmentalism	196
10	The Developmental States of East Asia	201
	The role of the state in economic development	203
	Theories of the developmental state	205
	Comparative political economy	208
	International political economy	210
	Limits of the East Asia developmental model	213
	Regionalisation: the next lap?	216
11	Democracy, Civil Society and Postdevelopment in Latin America	220
	The Latin American intellectual left	221
	Postwar developmentalism and dependency theory	223
	Military regimes, internationalisation and US imperialism	225
	The dance of the millions	227
	The new democracy: state, civil society and market reforms	229
	Civilian rule and political democracy	230
	The new social movements and civil society	233
	Imagining postdevelopment	235
	Conclusion	239
	Reconstructing universalism, regional mercantilism or postdevelopment?	242
	Notes and References	246
	Index	281