

Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
Introduction	1
The reception of theory	2
Generations of understanding and practice	6
The organization of this work	10
PART I
Positioning Queer theory	13
1 Crossroads	15
The current dilemma	15
The postmodern turn	19
The academic context	30
2 Making Queer theory	32
Beginnings	32
Queer theory proper	34
Queer theory and diversity	35
Precursors	37
Class in Queer theory	38
Power and the production of ideology	40
The paradox of Queer theory	42
The use of the concept of culture	43

PART II

Evaluating practice 47

3 Considering sex, gender, and difference 49

The essentialist/constructionist debate: from troubles to difference 53

Queer and different 57

Solidarity and solitary analyses 60

4 Capitalism and its transgressors 65

Capitalism, community, and identity 66

The transformation of the social sphere 67

The destruction of community 68

Communities in late capitalism 69

Politics and lifestyle 72

Consuming desire 73

Globalizing queer 77

5 Meta-identity, performativity, and internalized homophobia 79

Academic stardom, performance, and the attributes of language 79

Roles and subversions: professing parody 86

Parody, imitation, and internalized homophobia 90

PART III

Moving ahead 95

6 From culture to action 97

What is political? 98

Identifying with social movements 100

The appropriation of energy 103

Resistance movements 107

Class, race, gender, and social resistance 110

Conclusion: theory, politics, and the community 113

The queer community 115

Queer communities as part-cultures 116

Developing strategy 117

The promise of civil society 118

Queer theory revisited 121

Notes	124
Bibliography	139
Index	152