

CONTENTS

---

Preface	viii
PART I INTRODUCTION	1
1 Stories of Democracy: Old and New	3
1.1 Models of democracy	5
1.2 Democracy, globalization and international governance	16
1.3 The limits of democratic political theory and international relations theory	23
PART II ANALYSIS: THE FORMATION AND DISPLACEMENT OF THE MODERN STATE	29
2 The Emergence of Sovereignty and the Modern State	31
2.1 From divided authority to the centralized state	32
2.2 The modern state and the discourse of sovereignty	38
3 The Development of the Nation-state and the Entrenchment of Democracy	48
3.1 War and militarism	52
3.2 States and capitalism	59
3.3 Liberal democracy and citizenship	66

4	The Inter-state System	73
4.1	Sovereignty and the Westphalian order	74
4.2	The international order and the United Nations system	83
4.3	The states system vs. global politics?	89
5	Democracy, the Nation-state and the Global Order I	99
5.1	Disjuncture 1: international law	101
5.2	Disjuncture 2: internationalization of political decision-making	107
5.3	Disjuncture 3: hegemonic powers and international security structures	113
6	Democracy, the Nation-state and the Global Order II	121
6.1	Disjuncture 4: national identity and the globalization of culture	121
6.2	Disjuncture 5: the world economy	127
6.3	The new context of political thought	136
PART III RECONSTRUCTION: FOUNDATIONS OF DEMOCRACY		141
7	Rethinking Democracy	143
7.1	The principle of autonomy	145
7.2	The terms of the principle of autonomy	153
7.3	The idea of a democratic legal state	156
8	Sites of Power, Problems of Democracy	159
8.1	Democratic thought experiment	160
8.2	Power, life-chances and nautonomy	167
8.3	Power clusters	172
8.4	Seven sites of power	176
9	Democracy and the Democratic Good	189
9.1	The democratic public law	190
9.2	The obligation(s) to nurture self-determination	201
9.3	Ideal, attainable and urgent autonomy	206
9.4	The democratic good	216

PART IV ELABORATION AND ADVOCACY:
	COSMOPOLITAN DEMOCRACY	219
10	Political Community and the Cosmopolitan Order	221
10.1	The requirement of the democratic good: cosmopolitan democracy	226
10.2	Democracy as a transnational, common structure of political action	231
10.3	New forms and levels of governance	235
11	Markets, Private Property and Cosmopolitan Democratic Law	239
11.1	Law, liberty and democracy	241
11.2	The economic limits to democracy?	244
11.3	The rationale of political intervention in the economy	249
11.4	The entrenchment of democracy in economic life	251
11.5	Forms and levels of intervention	258
11.6	Private property, 'access avenues' and democracy	263
12	Cosmopolitan Democracy and the New International Order	267
12.1	Rethinking democracy and the international order: the cosmopolitan model	270
12.2	Cosmopolitan objectives: short- and long-term	278
12.3	Concluding reflections	283
	Acknowledgements	287
	References and Select Bibliography	288
	Index	314