

Contents

Preface	page ix
1. Introduction: Reflective equilibrium in theory and practice	1
PART I
2. Wide reflective equilibrium and theory acceptance in ethics	21
3. Reflective equilibrium and Archimedean points	47
4. On some methods of ethics and linguistics	66
5. Two approaches to theory acceptance in ethics	81
6. An argument about the relativity of justice	103
7. Moral theory and the plasticity of persons	120
8. Reflective equilibrium and justice as political	144
PART II
9. Health-care needs and distributive justice	179
10. Equality of what: Welfare, resources, or capabilities?	208
11. Determining "medical necessity" in mental health practice, with James E. Sabin	232
Postscript: More on capabilities and the goals of medicine	251
12. The prudential life-span account of justice across generations	257
13. Problems with prudence	284

Contents

14. Merit and meritocracy	302
15. Rationing fairly: Programmatic considerations	317
Postscript: Fair procedures and just rationing	327
16. Wide reflective equilibrium in practice	333
Index	353