
Contents

Preface	ix
Key to Abbreviated References in the Text	xiii
Introduction: The Theory of Justice as Reason's Answer to Subjugation	1
PART ONE: THE SCIENCE OF NATURAL JUSTICE
Chapter 1: Subjugation and the Natural Test of Morality	25
Authority and Reason: Descartes, Hobbes, and Locke	25
Entering the Natural Context: Doubting Moral Authority	36
Psychology in the Natural Context: Subjectivity, Identity, Equality, and Sovereignty	43
Reason in the Natural Context: The Nonmoral "Ought" and the Personal Imperative of Self-Interest	54
The Evil Demon in the Natural Context: The Suspicion of Subjugation	63
The Social Contract and Reason's Weak Answer to Subjugation	68
Chapter 2: Reason and the Internal Social Contract	83
From External to Internal Social Contract: Hobbes, Locke, and Rousseau	83
The Puzzle of the Rational Necessity of Morality: Critique of Benevolence, Utilitarianism, Idealism, Neo-Hobbesianism, Universalizability	97
Morality as Reason's Passion: The Moral Imperative of Respect	112
Kant and the Nature of Respect	128
The Social Contract and Reason's Strong Answer to Subjugation	141

PART TWO: THE PRINCIPLES OF JUSTICE

Chapter 3: Natural Justice and the Natural Covenant	157
The Principle of Compatible Liberty	157
The Principle of Natural Ownership	170
The Principle of Trustworthiness	179
The Principle of Intergenerational Solicitude	184
The Point of Morality, Mutual Respect, and the Principle of Just Punishment	187
The Naturalistic Fallacy	199
The Primacy of Justice and the Precondition of Community	206
Chapter 4: From Natural Justice to Social Justice	213
Social Structure	214
Structural Force	218
Ideology and the Invisibility of Social Structure	223
The Social Contract and the Question of Social Justice	226
Justice and Fairness	229
Chapter 5: Social Justice and the Social Contract	234
Law, Politics, and the Libertarian Blindness: From Locke to Nozick	234
Property, Ideology, and the Labor Theory of Moral Value: From Rousseau to Marx	243
The Need for a Theory of the Social Contract: The Power and Limits of Rawls's Theory of Justice	258
The Difference Principle as the Standard of Nonsubjugating Distributions	272
Revising Rawls and Deducing the Difference Principle	290
The Governing Principle of Social Justice and the Articles of the Social Contract	297
Conclusion: Visions, Moral, Metaphysical, and Religious	309
Notes	313
Index	319