

Political philosophy and social welfare

Essays on the normative
basis of welfare provision

Raymond Plant BA, PhD, AKC

Professor of Politics, Southampton University

Harry Lesser BA, BPhil

Lecturer in Philosophy, Manchester University

Peter Taylor-Gooby BA

Lecturer in Social Administration, University of Kent

Routledge & Kegan Paul
London, Boston and Henley

Contents

Preface	xi
Acknowledgments	xiii
1 Political philosophy and social welfare	1
The expansion of the welfare state
The response of political philosophy
Political philosophy and the study of social policy
Substantive theory
Reflexive theory
Essentially contested concepts
The limits of essential contestability
The logic of conversion
Conversion and the level of argument
The social history of contested concepts
Political philosophy and the sociology of knowledge
Problems in Miller's approach
Essential contestability and the study of social policy
Part I Needs, welfare and social policy	19
2 Needs, rights and welfare	20
Needs and the goals of welfare
Needs and stigma
Needs and wants
Needs, wants and psychology
Needs, means and goals
3 Human needs, objectivity and morality	37
Survival as a basic need
Basis needs and moral obligations
The reach of the principle of need
Autonomy as a basic need
4 The moral basis of welfare provision	52
The nature of the obligation to provide welfare
Welfare and altruism
Justice and social welfare
Human rights and the right to welfare
Human rights and social rights

The tests of rights
 Respect for persons, inviolability and the right to welfare
 Respect for persons and the equality of respect
 Needs and rights

Part II Needs, welfare and political processes 97

5 Needs, interests and power 98

Needs, interests and politics
 The objectivity of social need
 Consensus, conflict and the conception of need
 The mobilization of bias and the articulation of need
 Consciousness, hegemony and the definition of need
 Empiricism and false consciousness

6 Objectivity, social justice and social policy 122

The response to the theory of 'justice as fairness'
 Rawls's theory
 The account of the original position
 Runciman
 Pinker
 George and Wilding
 Rawls's appeal
 Rawls and the rationality of interventionism
 Conclusion

7 True and false needs 152

Marcuse on repression and false needs
 Capitalism and human needs
 Real needs and coercion

8 Markets, needs and welfare 173

Three arguments for markets
 The distinction between needs and wants
 Explanation and evaluation
 Methodological individualism
 An individualistic account of political behaviour
 Needs, wants and free markets
 The relativity of wants

Part III Community, welfare and social policy 203

9 Community and the legitimation of social policy 204

Community as a normative concept
 Community as an essentially contested concept
 Marxism: class, community and the future
 Conservatism: community and tradition

10 Markets, community and welfare 223

Community and liberalism
 Partial communities
 The problems of overall community
 Altruism and ultra obligations
 Needs, welfare, state and community

Bibliography	247
Name index	258
Subject index	261