
Contents

Note on References and Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction	3
Uses for Marx, Uses for Philosophy	3
Two Versions of Marx	8

MORALITY

Chapter One: Against Morality	15
The Distinctness of Morality	16
Equality	19
Equal Distribution	20
Equal Rights	22
A Mistake about Marx and Rights	27
Equal Concern	30
Utilitarianism	31
A Utilitarian Marx	35
Generality	41
Universal Rationality	43
Ideology	45
Chapter Two: Replacing Morality	51
General Goods and Societal Goals	53
The Process of Change	60
A Model of Character	63
The Structure of a Non-morality	76
Allen Wood's Alternative	78
A Tempting Conclusion	96

POWER

Chapter Three: The Concept of a Ruling Class	101
Introduction	101
A Charge of Neglect	104

CONTENTS

What Is a Ruling Class?	105
The State and Revolution	114
Testability	126
Structuralism and Instrumentalism	129
A Good Question	136
Chapter Four: Questions of Power in Political Theory	142
Pluralism and Its Discontents	142
The Fate of Pluralism	152
Ruling Classes and Power Elites	157
Functionalism and Social Interests	160
The Chains of Methodology	161
Better Theories of Power	165

HISTORY

Chapter Five: Productive Forces and the Forces of Change	171
Introduction	171
Marx as Technological Determinist	174
The Stakes Are High	181
Marx Was Not a Technological Determinist	188
A New Glossary	195
The Mode of Production Interpretation	205
A Broader View	213
Marx's Models and Marx's Context	217
Chapter Six: The Mode of Production and History	221
Some Objections	221
Holism	221
Materialism	226
Theories Worthy of the Name	231
Falsification	236
Internal/External	241
Is History like That?	253
The External, Again	268
Chapter Seven: Replacing Positivism	271
The Obstacle of Positivism	271

CONTENTS

An Alternative to Positivism: Explanation	283
Causes	284
Adequate Description	287
Causal Depth	289
An Alternative to Positivism: Confirmation	292
Positivism and Politics	304
Index	315