The Communicative Ethics Controversy

edited by Seyla Benhabib and Fred Dallmayr

The MIT Press, Cambridge, Massachusetts, and London, England

Contents

Sources and Acknowledgments vii

Introduction 1
Fred Dallmayr

Part I
The Program of Communicative Ethics

1 Is the Ethics of the Ideal Communication Community a Utopia? On the Relationship between Ethics, Utopia, and the Critique of Utopia 23
Karl-Otto Apel

2 Discourse Ethics: Notes on a Program of Philosophical Justification 60
Jürgen Habermas

3 Transcendental Pragmatics and Critical Morality: On the Possibility and Moral Significance of a Self-Enlightenment of Reason 111
Dietrich Böhler

4 A Theory of Practical Discourse 151
Robert Alexy

Part II
The Controversy

5 Kantian Skepticism toward Transcendental Ethics of Communication 193
Otfried Höffe

6 The Basis of the Validity of Moral Norms 220
Karl-Heinz Ilting

7 Are Norms Methodically Justifiable? A Reconstruction of Max Weber's Reply 256
Hermann Lübbe

8 Remarks about Rationality and Language 270
Herbert Schnädelbach

9 Practical Philosophy and the Theory of Society: On the Problem of the Normative Foundations of a Critical Social Science 293
Albrecht Wellmer

Afterword: Communicative Ethics and Contemporary Controversies in Practical Philosophy 330
Seyla Benhabib

Contributors 371

Index 373