

CONTENTS

Foreword v

PART ONE. STUDIES IN THE HISTORY OF THE GERMAN SPIRIT DURING THE NINETEENTH CENTURY

Introduction: Goethe and Hegel	2
1. Goethe's Idea of Primary Phenomena and Hegel's Comprehension of the Absolute	5
a. The Unity of Principle	5
b. The Difference in Exposition	8
2. Rose and Cross	13
a. Goethe's Rejection of Hegel's Association of Reason with the Cross	13
b. Goethe's Association of Humanity with the Cross	16
c. The Lutheran Sense of Rose and Cross	17
d. Hegel's and Goethe's "Protestantism"	18
e. Goethe's Christian Paganism and Hegel's Philosophical Christianity	19
f. The End of the World of Goethe and Hegel	25

THE ORIGIN OF THE SPIRITUAL DEVELOPMENT OF THE AGE IN HEGEL'S PHILOSOPHY OF THE HISTORY OF THE SPIRIT

I. The Eschatological Meaning of Hegel's Consumma- tion of the History of the World and the Spirit	29
1. The Eschatological Design of World History	29

2. The Eschatological Nature of the Absolute Forms of the Spirit	34
a. Art and Religion	34
b. Philosophy	37
3. Hegel's Reconciliation of Philosophy with the State and the Christian Religion	43
II. Old Hegelians, Young Hegelians, Neo-Hegelians	50
1. The Preservation of Hegelian Philosophy by the Old Hegelians	50
2. The Overthrow of Hegelian Philosophy by the Young Hegelians	63
a. L. Feuerbach (1804-72)	69
b. A. Ruge (1802-80)	80
c. K. Marx (1818-83)	89
d. M. Stirner (1806-56)	101
e. B. Bauer (1809-82)	103
f. S. Kierkegaard (1813-55)	108
g. Schelling's Connection with the Young Hegelians	113
3. The Refurbishing of Hegelian Philosophy by the Neo-Hegelians	119
III. The Dissolution of Hegel's Mediations in the Ex- clusive Choices of Marx and Kierkegaard	135
1. The General Criticism of Hegel's Notion of Reality	135
2. The Critical Distinctions of Marx and Kierke- gaard	144
a. Marx	144
b. Kierkegaard	146
3. Criticism of the Capitalistic World and Secular- ized Christianity	150
a. Marx	150
b. Kierkegaard	156
4. Estrangement as the Source of Hegel's Recon- ciliation	160

THE PHILOSOPHY OF HISTORY BECOMES THE DESIRE FOR ETERNITY

IV. Nietzsche as Philosopher of Our Age and of Eternity	173
1. Nietzsche's Evaluation of Goethe and Hegel	174
2. Nietzsche's Relationship to the Hegelianism of the Forties	179
3. Nietzsche's Attempt to Surmount Nihilism	186
V. The Spirit of the Age and the Question of Eternity	200
1. The Spirit of the Ages Becomes the Spirit of the Age	200
2. Time and History for Hegel and Goethe	207
a. The Present as Eternity	207
b. Hegel's Philosophy of History and Goethe's View of the Course of the World	212

PART TWO. STUDIES IN THE HISTORY OF THE BOURGEOIS-CHRISTIAN WORLD

I. The Problem of Bourgeois Society	232
1. Rousseau: Bourgeois and Citoyen	233
2. Hegel: Bourgeois Society and Absolute State	237
3. Marx: Bourgeoisie and Proletariat	242
4. Stirner: The Individual "I" as the Common Ground of Bourgeois and Proletarian Man	244
5. Kierkegaard: The Bourgeois-Christian Self	246
6. Donoso Cortes and Proudhon: Christian Dictatorship from Above and Atheistic Reordering of Society from Below	248
7. A. de Tocqueville: The Development of Bourgeois Democracy into Democratic Despotism	250
8. G. Sorel: The Nonbourgeois Democracy of the Working Class	254
9. Nietzsche: The Human Herd and Its Leader	257

II. The Problem of Work	260
1. Hegel: Work as Self-Renunciation in Forming the World	262
2. C. Rössler and A. Ruge: Work as Appropriation of the World and Liberation of Man	267
3. Marx: Work as Man's Self-Alienation in a World Not His Own	270
a. Criticism of the Abstract Classical Notion of Work	270
b. Criticism of the Abstract Notion of Work in Hegelian Philosophy	273
4. Kierkegaard: The Meaning of Work for the Self	279
5. Nietzsche: Work as the Dissolution of Devotion and Contemplation	283
III. The Problem of Education	286
1. Hegel's Political Humanism	286
2. The Young Hegelians	291
a. Ruge's Politicization of Aesthetic Education	291
b. Stirner's Reduction of Humanistic and Scientific Education to Self-Revelation of the Individual	294
c. Bauer's Criticism of the Cliché of the "Universal"	296
3. J. Burckhardt on the Century of Education and G. Flaubert on the Contradictions of Knowledge	298
4. Nietzsche's Criticism of Education, Present and Past	300
IV. The Problem of Man	304
1. Hegel: Absolute Spirit as the Universal Essence of Man	304
2. Feuerbach: Corporeal Man as the Ultimate Essence of Man	307
3. Marx: The Proletariat as the Possibility of Collective Man	309

4. Stirner: The Individual "I" as the Proprietor of Man	313
5. Kierkegaard: The Solitary Self as Absolute Humanity	315
6. Nietzsche: The Superman as the Transcendence of Man	318
V. The Problem of Christianity	323
1. Hegel's Transcending of Religion by Philosophy	324
2. Strauss's Reduction of Christianity to Myth	330
3. Feuerbach's Reduction of the Christian Religion to the Nature of Man	331
4. Ruge's Replacement of Christianity by Humanity	338
5. Bauer's Destruction of Theology and Christianity	339
6. Marx's Explanation of Christianity as a Perverted World	347
7. Stirner's Systematic Destruction of the Divine and the Human	351
8. Kierkegaard's Paradoxical Concept of Faith and His Attack upon Existing Christendom	355
9. Nietzsche's Criticism of Christian Morality and Civilization	364
10. Lagarde's Political Criticism of Ecclesiastical Christianity	369
11. Overbeck's Historical Analysis of Primitive and Passing Christianity	374
Bibliography	386
Translations of Works Mentioned in Löwith's From Hegel to Nietzsche	389
Chronology	395
Notes	397
Index	453