

TABLE OF CONTENTS

DISPLAYED SENTENCES REFERRED TO FREQUENTLY	xiii
ACKNOWLEDGMENTS	xv
PREFACE	xvii
CHAPTER ONE: KANT'S PICTURE OF KNOWLEDGE	1
1. Kant's Goals	1
2. The Kantian Picture of Knowledge (I): Intuition, Concept, Sensibility, and Understanding	4
3. The Kantian Picture of Knowledge (II): Space, Time, and Transcendental Idealism	9
4. Summary	23
CHAPTER TWO: INTUITIONS AND THEIR OBJECTS	25
1. The Transcendental Deduction and Category Application	25
2. Kantian Representations in Our Knowledge: Things Existing in Themselves or Things Merely Appearing to Us in Time or Both?	26
3. The Object That Kant Takes an Intuition to Represent to Us: Things as They Appear and Appearances	36
4. A Problem for Kant	40
5. Outer and Inner Sense and the Problem for Kant	53
6. Things in Themselves: A Preliminary Comment	56
7. Summary	57
CHAPTER THREE: INTUITION, THE MANIFOLD OF INTUITION, AND ITS SYNTHESIS	59
1. Introduction	59
2. Our Discursive Thought-Consciousness and the Nature of a Kantian Concept	61

TABLE OF CONTENTS

DISPLAYED SENTENCES REFERRED TO FREQUENTLY	xiii
ACKNOWLEDGMENTS	xv
PREFACE	xvii
CHAPTER ONE: KANT'S PICTURE OF KNOWLEDGE	1
1. Kant's Goals	1
2. The Kantian Picture of Knowledge (I): Intuition, Concept, Sensibility, and Understanding	4
3. The Kantian Picture of Knowledge (II): Space, Time, and Transcendental Idealism	9
4. Summary	23
CHAPTER TWO: INTUITIONS AND THEIR OBJECTS	25
1. The Transcendental Deduction and Category Application	25
2. Kantian Representations in Our Knowledge: Things Existing in Themselves or Things Merely Appearing to Us in Time or Both?	26
3. The Object That Kant Takes an Intuition to Represent to Us: Things as They Appear and Appearances	36
4. A Problem for Kant	40
5. Outer and Inner Sense and the Problem for Kant	53
6. Things in Themselves: A Preliminary Comment	56
7. Summary	57
CHAPTER THREE: INTUITION, THE MANIFOLD OF INTUITION, AND ITS SYNTHESIS	59
1. Introduction	59
2. Our Discursive Thought-Consciousness and the Nature of a Kantian Concept	61

3.	The Elements of the Manifold of Intuition (I): Matters for Concepts	70
4.	The Elements of the Manifold of Intuition (II): Matters for Spatial Parts	80
5.	Problems and Loose Ends	89
6.	Conclusions	99
CHAPTER FOUR: THE TRANSCENDENTAL DEDUCTION: ITS STRUCTURE, GOALS, AND OPENING CLAIMS		103
1.	Introduction	103
2.	'Combination ... cannot be given' (B130)	105
3.	'How subjective conditions of thought can have objective validity ' (A89/B122): The Transcendental Deduction in Kant's Conception of It	111
4.	The Overall Shape of the Transcendental Deduction; the A- and B-Deductions	124
5.	Final Preliminaries. The § 14, A92–93/B125–26 Argument for the Deduction	135
6.	Summary	138
CHAPTER FIVE: COMBINATION AND INTENSIONALITY: B-DEDUCTION § 15		141
1.	Introduction	141
2.	Claims of B-Deduction § 15	141
3.	Intensionality	144
4.	The Assumption That H Knows through i	148
5.	Summary	153
CHAPTER SIX: APPERCEPTION: B-DEDUCTION § 16		155
1.	Introduction	155
2.	Kant's View of Apperception in B-Deduction § 16	156
3.	The Basic Structure of the § 16 Argument about Appercep- tion; the Problem of Validating Kant's Claim in § 16	159
4.	Three Ultimately Inadequate Kantian Attempts to Validate Unity-of-Apperception Claims Like (S)	171
5.	Can (S) Be Validated by Kant's Account of Synthesis? A Fourth Argument for (S)	184
6.	Summary	189

TABLE OF CONTENTS

xi

CHAPTER SEVEN: TRANSCENDENTAL UNITY OF APPERCEPTION AND ITS NECESSITY	191
1. Introduction	191
2. Stipulating (S) and Unity of Apperception	192
3. Necessity of Unity of Apperception	199
4. Summary	211
CHAPTER EIGHT: THE UNION OF THE MANIFOLD OF INTUITION IN THE CONCEPT OF AN OBJECT: B-DEDUCTION § 17	213
1. Introduction	213
2. Uniting the Manifold of i	214
3. Preliminaries to B-Deduction § 17	220
4. B-Deduction § 17 and Kant's Attempts to Prove the Union of i 's Manifold in the Concept of an Object	225
5. The Union of the Manifold of i in the Concept of an Object as Yielding H Knowledge; Further Questions	233
6. Summary	243
CHAPTER NINE: OBJECTIVE UNITY OF APPERCEPTION AND THE LOGICAL FORMS OF JUDGMENT: B-DEDUCTION § 18 AND § 19	245
1. Introduction	245
2. Objective Unity of Apperception	246
3. Objective Unity of Apperception and the Logical Forms of Judgment	250
4. Questions about the Logical Functions	261
5. The Copula, Objective Unity, and Necessary Unity	265
6. Summary	272
CHAPTER TEN: CATEGORY APPLICATION TO THE OBJECT OF INTUITION: B-DEDUCTION § 20	275
1. Introduction	275
2. Kant on Concepts and the Logical Functions of Thought in Judgment	275
3. Concepts in Judgments and Features in Objects	279
4. Kant on the Categories (I)	289
5. Kant on the Categories (II): Further Development	296

6. Kant on the Categories (III): Aristotelian Explanations	303
7. Evaluations. The Necessity of Category Application	310
8. Final Issues	319
9. Conclusions. The Overall Interest and Success of the First Half of the B-Deduction	333
10. Summary	335
NOTES	339
BIBLIOGRAPHY	409
INDEX	415