

Contents

Introduction	vii
1 Models and reality	1
2 Equivalence	26
3 Possibility and necessity	46
4 Reference and truth	69
5 'Two dogmas' revisited	87
6 There is at least one a priori truth	98
7 Analyticity and apriority: beyond Wittgenstein and Quine	115
8 Computational psychology and interpretation theory	139
9 Reflections on Goodman's Ways of Worldmaking	155
10 Convention: a theme in philosophy	170
11 Philosophers and human understanding	184
12 Why there isn't a ready-made world	205
13 Why reason can't be naturalized	229
14 Quantum mechanics and the observer	248
15 Vagueness and alternative logic	271
16 Beyond historicism	287
Bibliography	304
Acknowledgements	309
Index	310