INTRODUCTION

- i. Nativism and Empirism 5
- ii. Intuitionism and Constructivism 7
- iii. Formal Intuitionism 9
- iv. Kant's Formal Intuitionism 10
- v. Grounds for the Popular Neglect of Formal Intuitionism 12

PART I KANT'S REPRESENTATION TERMINOLOGY

Introduction 17

- i. The Place of the Aesthetic in the Critique of Pure Reason 21
- ii. Basic Confusions in Kant's Thought 26

1 The Distinction between Intuition and Understanding 28

- i. The Sense/Intellect Distinction in ID 32
  - a. The Project of the Inaugural Dissertation and Its Motivation 32
  - b. The Effect of the Paradoxes of Composition and Division 35
  - c. Kant's Theoretical Inheritance 41
  - d. Divergences from the Traditional Account of the Faculties 44
- ii. The Argument of ID 47
- iii. Strategic Difficulties 52
  - a. The Changed Outlook of the Critique 52

b. Problematic Consequences of Kant's Changed Outlook	54
iv. The Distinction between the Faculties in the Critique	58
v. The Circularity Problem	61
vi. Regressive Terminology	66
2 The Distinction between Form and Matter of Intuition	72
The Blindness Problem	72
i. The Two Basic Features of an Intuitive Representation	74
a. Multiplicity	74
b. Order	77
Forms as Mechanisms and Forms as Representations	79
Forms as Orders of Intuited Matters	80
ii. Textual Evidence against Forms as Mechanisms	81
iii. Textual Evidence against Forms as Representations	83
a. Kant's Groundless Assumption?	88
iv. Conflicting Passages	89
a. ID	91
b. The Original Acquisition Passage	91
c. Subjective and Objective Order	96
d. Figurative Synthesis	98
e. The Alteration at B34	100
v. Afterword	101
3 Sensation and the Matter of Intuition	103
i. The Epistemological Role of Sensation	107
a. Exegetical Difficulties with View 1	107
b. Exegetical Difficulties with Taking Sensations Out of Space (Views 2b and 3)	109
c. Evidence for View 2a	111
d. Conflicting Passages	112
The Analogies	112
The Classification Passage and the Two Senses                 of 'Sensation'	113
The 'Real' of Sensation	115
ii. The Ontological Status of Sensation	117
a. The Problem	118
b. The Physiological Account of Sensation	119
c. Sensations as Sensible Qualities	123
d. An 'Intentional Object' Account of Sensible Qualities	127
Appendix: Sensations as Effects of the Intensity of Force	130
Objection	133

4 Origins of the Form and the Matter of Intuition 135

Summary and Conclusions to Part I 138

PART II THE EXPOSITIONS

Introduction: Purpose and Method of the Expositions 145

- i. Purpose 145
- ii. Method 148
  - a. The Method of Conceptual Exposition 149
  - b. The Standard View of Kant's Methodology in the Expositions and Its Limitations 151

Appendix: An Empirical Exposition of Our Concepts of Sensible Qualities 154

5 The First Exposition 159

- i. Kant's Objectives in the First Exposition 160
  - a. The Standard Objection and Its Standard Refutation 161
- ii. Kant's Sensationist Opposition 165
- iii. The Standard Objection to the First Exposition 169
  - a. The A Priori Status of Space and Time 172
- iv. The Grounds of Kant's Rejection of Sensationism 174
  - a. An Excuse 175
  - b. A Defence 179

Appendix: Meditations on the Epistemology of Order 183

6 The Second Exposition 186

- i. Analysis of the Argument 186
  - a. Premises 186
  - b. Conclusions 189
  - c. Appearance or Intuition? A Problem of Representation Terminology 190
  - d. The Two-Part Structure of the Exposition 192
- ii. The Inextricability Argument 193
  - a. The Sense of 'Represent' 194
  - b. The Adequacy of the Argument 196
- iii. The Third Exposition in A and the Validity of Geometry 200
- iv. The Independence Argument 203
  - a. The Conceivability of Empty Space and Time 203
  - b. Arguments for the Conceivability of Empty Space and Time 205
  - c. The Real Possibility of Empty Space and Time 207

xii Contents

- d. Arguments for the Real Possibility of Empty Space and Time 210
  - Appendix: Empty Space and Time in Kantian Physics* 213
- e. Summary and Conclusions 215
- 7 The Later Expositions 217
  - i. The Singularity Argument 217
    - a. Justification for the Third Premise 218
    - b. Justification for the Second Premise 219
    - c. Justification for the First Premise 222
    - d. The Argument of the Time Section 226
    - e. Conclusions 228
  - ii. The Whole/Part Priority Argument 229
    - a. Premise 2 230
    - b. Premise 3a 234
    - c. Premise 3b 235
    - d. Premise 1 236
  - iii. The Infinity Argument 237
    - a. The A Infinity Argument 238
    - b. The B Infinity Argument 239
  - iv. The Completeness of the Later Expositions 241
  - v. The Composition of Intelligible Spaces and Times 244
- 8 The Transcendental Expositions 253
  - i. The Buttreassing Argument 254
    - a. The Priority Argument 254
    - b. The Immediacy Argument 258
  - ii. The Subjectivity Argument 263
    - a. An Intuitivity Argument 265
    - b. The Argument for Grounding in the Subject 266
      - Remark: Subjective Grounding and Conditionally A Priori Truth* 267
    - c. An Argument for Grounding in the Receptive Constitution of the Subject 268
  - iii. The Explanation of the Possibility of Geometry and Mechanics 269
- Summary and Conclusions to Part II 275
  - i. The Metaphysical Expositions 276
  - ii. The Transcendental Expositions 279
  - iii. Conclusions 281

PART III CONCLUSIONS FROM THE ABOVE CONCEPTS

Introduction 287

9 Kant's Argument for the Non-spatiotemporality of Things in Themselves 289

- i. Substantival Space and Time 293
- ii. Relative Space and Time 300
- iii. Limits of Kant's Result 304
- iv. Summary and Conclusions 308

10 The Unknowability Thesis and the Problem of Affection 310

- i. Unknowability 310
- ii. Affection 314
  - a. The Objectivity of Reference 316
  - b. 'Manifest' Idealism 318
  - c. The A Priori/A Posteriori Distinction 322
  - d. Summary 325

Appendix: The Legitimacy of Speculation about Transcendent Affection 327

11 Kant, Mendelssohn, Lambert, and the Subjectivity of Time 334

- i. Kant's Subjectivity Thesis 335
- ii. Mendelssohn's Objection 336
  - a. Kant's Initial Response 338
  - b. The Fallacy of Kant's Initial Response 341
  - c. The Representing Subject as Appearance 345
  - d. Kant's Critical Response to Mendelssohn 348
- iii. Kant's Response to Mendelssohn and the Subjectivity Thesis 352
  - a. Subjectivity and Non-spatiotemporality 352
  - b. Subjectivity and Unknowability 353

Summary and Conclusions to Part III 356

AFTERWORD 359
