

Contents

Acknowledgements	4
Introduction	5
A note on the translation	37
I On the Mathematical Method	39
§ 1 Foreword	40
§ 2 Propositions and ideas in themselves	40
§ 3 Simple and complex ideas	42
§ 4 Ideas with and without objects	44
§ 5 Relations between ideas with respect to their extensions .	46
§ 6 Intuitions and concepts	50
§ 7 Conceptual and other propositions	52
§ 8 Relations among propositions based upon the assumption that certain of their components are variable	53
§ 9 Explications	56
§ 10 Which concepts and propositions should be rendered as distinct as possible?	59
§ 11 How is this to be brought about?	60
§ 12 Proofs	68
§ 13 Objective connection among truths in themselves	69
§ 14 One should endeavor to indicate this connection	70
§ 15 Comprehensible development	75
§ 16 Apagogical proofs	78
§ 17 Order of exposition	79
§ 18 Headings	81

II Selections from the Bolzano-Exner Correspondence 83

1.	Exner to Bolzano, 27 June 1833	84
2.	Bolzano to Exner, 9 July 1833	91
3.	Exner to Bolzano, 10 August 1833	101
4.	Bolzano to Exner, 23 August 1833	107
5.	Exner to Bolzano, 28 December 1833	118
6.	Bolzano to Exner, 14 January 1834	123
7.	Bolzano to Exner, 24 February 1834	129
8.	Exner to Bolzano, 4 March 1834	131
9.	Bolzano to Exner, 17 June 1834	133
10.	Exner to Bolzano, 11 November 1834	134
11.	Bolzano to Exner, 22 November 1834	140
12.	Exner to Bolzano, 10 December 1834	150
13.	Bolzano to Exner, 18 December 1834	157

III Bolzano and Exner on Ideas and their objects: an exchange from 1843 175

Essay in which a logical question raised by Professor Exner in his paper "On nominalism and realism" is answered	176
--	-----

IV Indices 185

Index of Names	186
Index of Subjects	188