

Contents

Preface	1
1. Introduction	4
Orthodoxy and Science: Special Experience	4
2. Patristic Theology and Natural Sciences: Elements of History	13
Introduction 13 • The Problem in Its Historical Setting 14 • The Apologists and Greek Religious Philosophy 16 • Science and Philosophy as Cooperating in Truth 17 • Faith as a Condition for Knowledge 18 • The Interpretation of Nature 20 • The Laws of Nature 21 • The Transfiguration of Nature 22 • From Uniformity in Nature to the Logos of God: St. Athanasius 23 • St. Maximus the Confessor on the logoi of Creation 25 • Detachment from Nature and the Love of Nature 28 • The Latin Church and the Natural Sciences 28 • St. Augustine of Hippo and the Natural Sciences 30 • Science as the Handmaiden of Theology in St. Augustine 31 • Seminal Reasons and Natural Law in St. Augustine 33 • The Differences between the Greek and Latin Treatment of Nature and Science 36
3. What Makes Theology Unique among Sciences: The Patristic Vision versus Modern Understanding	41
Theology as Experience of God: Patristic Vision 41 • The Inevitability of Mysticism in Theology 44 • Theology as Unique 48 • Church's Definitions as Boundaries of Faith 49 • Apophaticism of Orthodox Theology 51 • The Faculty That Makes Theologia Possible and Its Role in Discursive Theologizing 52 • What in Theology Can Be Related to Science? 55 • Christ-Event as the Foundation of Theology 57 • Science and Theology "Compared" 61 • Spiritual Intellect and Mediation between Theology and Science 63 • Orthodox Theology and Philosophy 65 • Orthodox Theology and Science: Epistemological Formula 68

4. Toward a Theological Methodology of Mediation with Science	75
Philosophy and Apophaticism 75 • Scientific Monism and Apophaticism 80 • Antithetic Dialectics and Antinomial Monodualism 83 • Theological Apophaticism and Transcendental Philosophy 91 • The logoi of Creation and the World 101 • The logoi of Creation and Antinomies 107 • Hypostatic Dimension in Theistic Inferences from Creation 110 • The Universe as "Hypostatic Inherence" in the Logos of God 112
5. Creation in Cosmology and Theology	118
Creatio ex nihilo and Contingency of the World 118 • Creation and Incarnation: Intelligibility of the World and Scientific Advance 121 • Creation in Classical Cosmology: Cosmological Evolution and Initial Conditions 126 • Elimination of Real Time in Quantum Cosmology 134 • Some General Comments on Hawking's Model 141 • Imaginary Time in Quantum Cosmology and Timeless Time in Christian Platonism 145 • Quantum Cosmology: Diaphora in Creation versus Creation out of Nothing 152
6. Irreversibility of Time and the logos of Creation	160
Irreversibility of Time and Eternity 160 • Irreversibility of Time and Boundary Conditions in the Universe 167 • Penrose's Model and Its Theological Interpretation 171 • Irreversibility of Time through Irreversibility of Processes 177 • Irreversibility and Two Views of Nature 180 • Prigogine's Treatment of the Time Paradox 183 • From Irreversibility in Physics to Theological Contingency 186
7. Humanity as Hypostasis of the Universe	194
Defining the Humankind-Event 195 • The Humankind-Event and the Anthropic Principle 200 • Hypostatic Dimension of the Humankind-Event 208 • From Anthropocentric Transcendentalism to Christian Platonism 214 • Intelligibility and Meaning of the Universe: The Participatory Anthropic Principle 220 • The Humankind-Event and the Incarnation 226 • The Universe as Hypostatic Event 236
Abbreviations	249
Notes	249
Bibliography	270
Index	282