

CONTENTS

Preface vii

Introduction to the 2006 Edition. Human Uniqueness and Human Responsibility: Science and Religion in a New Millennium / xi

1. An Open Future / xii
2. Matter, Energy, Information / xiv
3. Genetics: Past, Present, and Future / xviii
4. Human Uniqueness: Brain, Mind, Culture / xxiv
5. Mind Knowing Nature: Realism and Social Construction / xxxi
6. Science and Conscience xxxv
7. Historical and Cruciform Nature: Life Persisting in Perishing / xxxix

Chapter 1. Methods in Scientific and Religious Inquiry / 1

1. Theories, Creeds, and Experience / 1
2. Models, Patterns, Paradigms / 8
3. Objectivity and Involvement / 16
4. Scientific and Religious Logic / 22

Chapter 2. Matter: Religion and the Physical Sciences / 33

1. Newtonian Mechanism / 34
2. Quantum Mechanics and Indeterminacy / 41
3. Relativity and Matter-Energy / 54
4. Microphysical and Astrophysical Nature / 65

Chapter 3. Life: Religion and the Biological Sciences / 81

1. Biochemistry and the Secret of Life / 82
2. Evolution and the Secret of Life / 90
3. The Cybernetics of Life / 124
4. The Life Struggle / 133

Chapter 4. Mind: Religion and the Psychological Sciences / 151

1. The Possibility of a Human Science / 151
2. Religion and Freudian Psychoanalysis / 159
3. Religion and Behavioral Science / 170
4. Religion and Humanistic Psychologies / 183

Chapter 5. Culture: Religion and the Social Sciences / 198

1. Society and the Individual: Models, Laws, Causes / 200
2. Interpretive Social Science / 210
3. Religion as a Social Projection / 219
4. Values in Social Science / 226

Chapter 6. Nature and History / 238

1. Nature after Science / 238
2. Hard Naturalism / 247
3. Soft Naturalism / 253
4. Eastern Perspectives / 258
5. The Dimension of History / 269
6. Suffering / 286

Chapter 7. Nature, History, and God / 297

1. Nature and Supernature / 298
2. Scientific-Existentialist Theism / 306
3. Process Theism / 315
4. Transscientific Theism / 322
5. Insight in Science and Religion: Doing the Truth / 335