

Contents

Contributors	vii
Acknowledgments	ix
Editor's Introduction	xi
Philip Clayton

A Naturalistic Christian Faith for the Twenty-First Century: An Essay in Interpretation

Arthur Peacocke

Preface	3
Chapter 1. Prologue: Naturalism, Theism, and Religion	5
Part One: Philosophical and Theological Consequences of the Scientific Perspective
Chapter 2. Emergentist Monism	12
Chapter 3. Theistic Naturalism	17
Chapter 4. Panentheism	21
Part Two: The Consequences for Theology of the Reappraisal of the Natural
Chapter 5. The Application of an "Emergentist-Naturalistic-Panentheistic" Perspective	26
Chapter 6. Jesus of Nazareth—A Naturalistic Interpretation	29
Chapter 7. Jesus the Christ—A Naturalistic "Incarnation"?	36
Chapter 8. The Eucharist—A Natural Enactment	42
Chapter 9. God's Interaction with the World	45
Chapter 10. Transforming Grace	48
Chapter 11. Conclusion	55

Responses

---

1. Arthur Peacocke's Theology of Possibilities Philip Hefner	59
2. Some Words in Favor of Reductionism, Pantheism, Theism, and More Willem B. Drees	70
3. Emergence, Naturalism, and Panentheism: An Eastern Christian Perspective Christopher C. Knight	81
4. Empirical Theology and a "Naturalistic Christian Faith" Karl E. Peters	93
5. Sacrament and Sacrifice: The Feedback Loops of Religious Community Donald M. Braxton	104
6. The Juxtaposition of Naturalistic and Christian Faith: Reappraising the Natural from within a Different Theological Lens Ann Pederson	119
7. Arthur Peacocke: Postmodern Prophet Nancey Murphy	130
8. Arthur Peacocke on Method in Theology and Science and His Model of the Divine/World Interaction: An Appreciative Assessment Robert John Russell	140
9. Personhood, Spirit, and the Supernatural Keith Ward	152
10. On Divine and Human Agency: Reflections of a Co-Laborer Philip Clayton	163
Reflections on the Responses Arthur Peacocke	176
Nunc Dimittis Arthur Peacocke	191
Appendix A: "God"	195
Appendix B: A Short Life of Jesus	196
Appendix C: God's Interaction with the World	199
Notes	201