

LOGICS AND LANGUAGES

M. J. CRESSWELL

Contents

PREFACE	page ix
NOTE ON REFERENCES	xi
INTRODUCTION	1
ART I PROPOSITIONAL LANGUAGES
1 Syntax and Semantics of Propositional Languages	13
Syntax (13) – Semantics (17) – Indexical semantics (23).
2 Propositional Logics	28
Validity (28) – Truth-functional logic (30) – Modal logic (32) – Axiomatic systems (34).
3 The Metaphysics of Propositions	37
Basic particular situations (37) – Propositions (39) – Synonymy (44) – Postscript (46).
4 The Structure of Propositions	48
Language learning and innate ideas (48) – Meaning algebras (51) – The logical structure of propositions (53) – Semantic informa- tion (56) – Indeterminacy (58).
PART II CATEGORIAL LANGUAGES
5 Pure Categorical Languages	65
Zero-order languages (65) – Intensional objects (68) – Categorical languages (70) – Frege’s principle (75).
6 Abstraction and <math>\lambda</math>-categorical Languages	80
Quantifiers (80) – $\lambda$ -categorical languages (84) – $\lambda$ -conversion (88) – $\lambda$ -categorical languages and ordinary language (90).

7 The Metaphysics of Categorical Languages	93
Basic individuals (94) – Things (98) – Self-reference (100) – Quotation (104).
8 Pragmatics	109
Contexts of use (109) – Utterances (111) – Context-dependent interpretations (115) – Presuppositions (119) – Contexts and quotation (122).
PART III ENGLISH AS A CATEGORIAL LANGUAGE
9 Some Parts of Speech	127
A $\lambda$ -categorical base for English (127) – Nominals (130) – Nouns and verbs (133) – Determiners (135) – Abstract nouns and mass nouns (139) – Adverbs and adjectives (140) – Prepositions (144) – Nominals and scope (147).
10 More Parts of Speech	151
The auxiliary do (151) – Conjunctions (153) – Relative and reflexive pronouns (158) – The collective sense of nominals (161) – that clauses (165) – Infinitives (169).
11 Context-dependence in English	173
Personal pronouns (173) – Pronouns as bound variables (178) – More about the definite article (179) – The verb to be (182).
PART IV ENGLISH AS A NATURAL LANGUAGE
12 Words and Morphemes	189
Surface structure (189) – Pluralization (190) – Other morphemes (192) – Time, tense and aspect (193) – Verb modification (199) – Participles (201) – Gerunds (205).
13 Obtaining Natural Languages	209
A revised account of utterance languages (209) – The noun-verb distinction (215) – Scope indicators (217) – Transformations (224).
14 Meaning and Use	228
Meaning and truth conditions (228) – Explicit performatives (230) – Implicit performatives (232) – Questions (236) – Conversational meaning (238).

Appendix I	Some Background Notions	241
Appendix II	A Uniqueness Theorem	248
	Bibliography	250
	Index of Authors	263
	Index of Subjects	265
	Lexicon	271