

Violetta L. Waibel (ed.)

Detours

Approaches to Immanuel Kant in Vienna, in Austria, and in Eastern Europe

In collaboration with Max Brinnich, Sophie Gerber, and Philipp Schaller

V&R unipress

Vienna University Press

---

Contents

Detours – Introduction to the Detours Reader by Violetta L. Waibel . . .	9
Kant and Censorship . . . . .	19
Kant and “Austrian Philosophy” – An Introduction by Alexander Wilfing . . . . .	19
The Early Kant Reception in Austria – From Joseph II to Francis II by Alexander Wilfing . . . . .	26
State Censorship of Kant – From Francis II to Count Thun by Alexander Wilfing . . . . .	32
Herbartianism – Rembold, von Thun und Hohenstein, Exner, Zimmermann by Kurt Walter Zeidler . . . . .	39
Lazarus Bendavid – Teaching Kant’s Philosophy in Vienna by Olga Ring . . . . .	47
The Reception and Criticism of Kant in Hungary at the End of the 18 th Century – The Teaching Activity of Anton Kreil by Eszter Deák . . .	51
Anton Reyberger and the Reception of Kant at Melk Abbey by Jakob Deibl, Johannes Deibl and Bernadette Kalteis . . . . .	55
Kant and the Principality of Salzburg by Werner Sauer . . . . .	58
Kant and Pre-1848 Catholic Theology by Franz L. Fillafer . . . . .	74
Franz von Zeiller and Kantianism in Jurisprudence by Franz L. Fillafer	82
Ernst Topitsch and Kant by Franz L. Fillafer . . . . .	94
Right, History, Religion – A Report on Two International Kant Symposia in Vienna, 2004 and 2005 by Herta Nagl-Docekal . . . . .	102
Kant and Karl Leonhard Reinhold . . . . .	109
The First Kantian – Reinhold, a Citizen of Vienna by Philipp Schaller and Violetta L. Waibel . . . . .	109
Karl Leonhard Reinhold (1757–1823) by Martin Bondeli . . . . .	113

Preludes for a Kantian-Reinholdian Philosophy in Vienna by Philipp Schaller . . . . .	118
Karl Leonhard Reinhold's Weimar Years 1784–1787 by Guido Naschert .	127
Reinhold's Letters on the Kantian Philosophy by Martin Bondeli . . . .	130
Reinhold's Correspondence with Kant by Martin Bondeli . . . . .	139
Reinhold as Mediator of Kantian Philosophy by Philipp Schaller . . . .	147
Reinhold and the Reception of Kant among the Herbert Circle in Klagenfurt by Guido Naschert . . . . .	158
Elementary Philosophy – Reinhold as an Interpreter of Kant's Critique of Reason and Forerunner of German Idealism by Martin Bondeli . . .	165
Kant and Eastern Europe . . . . .	177
The Advent of Kant's Philosophy in Eastern European Countries by Olga Ring . . . . .	177
The Reform of the Teaching of Philosophy – The Transylvanian Paradigm by Péter Egyed . . . . .	182
József Rozgonyi's Critique of Kant by Béla Mester . . . . .	191
Károly Böhm – System Building and Value Theory by Imre Ungvári-Zrínyi . . . . .	202
Károly Böhm's and Bernát Alexander's Hungarian Neo-Kantianism by László Percz . . . . .	206
The Reception of Kant by Sándor Tavaszy and the Klausenburg School by Márton Tonk . . . . .	212
The Reception of Kant in Romania (1818–1989) by Mădălina Diaconu and Marin Diaconu . . . . .	217
Tomáš Garrigue Masaryk's Critical and Distant Engagement with Kant by Jan Zouhar . . . . .	224
The Intellectual Intuition – Kant as Interpreted by the Czech Philosopher Vladimír Hoppe by Jindřich Karásek . . . . .	230
Max Steiner – A Pugnacious “Old Kantian” from Prague by Jörg Krappmann . . . . .	237
Kant in Slovenia by Jure Simoniti . . . . .	242
The Reaction to Kant in South-Slavic Countries by Jure Zovko . . . . .	249
The Reception of Kant's Philosophy in Poland by Jakub Kloc-Konkołowicz . . . . .	257
Kant and his Poets . . . . .	265
Kant and German Romanticism in the Eyes of Austrian 19 th Century Writers by Alexander Wilfing . . . . .	265
Friedrich Schiller – A Congenial Reader of Kant by Violetta L. Waibel .	268

Franz Grillparzer – Approaches to Kant by Gabriele Geml . . . . .	291
Joseph Schreyvogel – Kantian Moral Philosophy as the Art of Living by Gabriele Geml . . . . .	303
Ernst Freiherr von Feuchtersleben – Kant and the Prehistory of Psychotherapy in Austria by Gabriele Geml . . . . .	313
Friedrich Schlegel’s Reception of Kant During his Time in Vienna by Guido Naschert . . . . .	324
Adalbert Stifter and the Philosophy of Kant by Max Beck . . . . .	328
Kant’s Literary Legacy in 20 th Century Austria by Christoph Leschanz and Violetta L. Waibel . . . . .	334
Kant and Karl Kraus by Max Beck . . . . .	338
Kant, Rilke and Spirits Always at the Ready by Christoph Leschanz and Philipp Schaller . . . . .	350
Traces of Immanuel Kant in Friedell’s Work by Elisabeth Flucher . . . . .	365
Kant in the Work of Robert Musil by Christoph Leschanz . . . . .	372
Franz Kafka – The Forgotten Peace by Caroline Scholzen . . . . .	380
The “Decline” of the Prague Circle by Caroline Scholzen . . . . .	386
Ingeborg Bachmann – The Language of the Heavenly Bodies by Caroline Scholzen . . . . .	388
Thomas Bernhard’s Immanuel Kant by Sebastian Schneck . . . . .	395
Reception of Kant in Klagenfurt as Reflected in Two Contemporary Austrian Novels by Elisabeth Flucher . . . . .	402
Franz Schuh – Between Kantstraße and Hegelhof by Elisabeth Flucher . . . . .	407
Kehlmann’s Measuring the World – The Reinvention of an Era by Elisabeth Flucher . . . . .	410
Kant and the Vienna Circle . . . . .	415
Kant and the Vienna Circle – Who’s Afraid of the Synthetic A Priori? by Bastian Stoppelkamp . . . . .	415
Moritz Schlick – A Critical Stance towards Kant by Olga Ring . . . . .	428
Edgar Zilsel – Kant as an Ally by Olga Ring . . . . .	435
Otto Neurath – Against Kant and the Special Path of German Philosophy by Bastian Stoppelkamp . . . . .	442
Rudolf Carnap (1891–1970) by Bastian Stoppelkamp . . . . .	454
Kantianism in 20 th Century Vienna by Kurt Walter Zeidler . . . . .	458
Kant, Kelsen and the Vienna School of Legal Theory by Sophie Loidolt . . . . .	468
Kant and Phenomenology . . . . .	477
Kant and Phenomenology in Austria by Max Brinnich and Georg Heller . . . . .	477

Franz Brentano (1838–1917) by Georg Heller . . . . .	480
Franz Brentano – Philosophy as an Exact Science by Georg Heller . . . .	482
The Brentano School in Vienna and Graz by Kurt Walter Zeidler . . . .	492
Edmund Husserl (1859–1938) by Marek Božuk . . . . .	499
Mapping Out the Stages of Husserl’s Kantianism in Vienna by Marek Božuk . . . . .	504
Heidegger’s Metaphysical Interpretation of Kant – Reason and the Hermeneutics of Facticity by Philipp Schmidt . . . . .	514
Hönigswald’s Attitude to Kant and Phenomenology by Max Brinnich .	521
Endnotes . . . . .	527
Citations and Key to Abbreviations . . . . .	613
Register of Illustrations . . . . .	617
Authors . . . . .	627