

CONSTRUCTING AUTHORITIES

Reason, Politics and Interpretation in Kant's Philosophy

ONORA O'NEILL

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

|   |                 |
|---|-----------------|
| Acknowledgements   | page vii |
| Introduction  | I               |
| Bibliographical note on quotations from and citations of Kant's work  | 8               |
| PART I AUTHORITY IN REASONING   |                 |
| 1 Vindicating reason  | 13              |
| 2 Kant: rationality as practical reason                               | 38              |
| 3 Kant's conception of public reason                                  | 56              |
| 4 Constructivism in Rawls and Kant                                    | 69              |
| 5 Changing constructions  | 86              |
| PART II AUTHORITY, AUTONOMY AND PUBLIC REASON                         |                 |
| 6 Autonomy: the Emperor's New Clothes                                 | 103             |
| 7 Self-legislation, autonomy and the form of law                      | 121             |
| 8 Autonomy and public reason in Kant, Habermas and Rawls              | 137             |
| PART III AUTHORITY IN POLITICS  |                 |
| 9 Orientation in thinking: geographical problems, political solutions | 153             |
| 10 Kant and the Social Contract tradition                             | 170             |

|                                     |   |     |
|-------------------------------------|---|-----|
| 11                                  | Historical trends and human futures                       | 186 |
| 12                                  | Cosmopolitanism then and now                              | 199 |
| PART IV AUTHORITY IN INTERPRETATION |   |     |
| 13                                  | Kant on reason and religion I: reasoned hope              | 217 |
| 14                                  | Kant on reason and religion II: reason and interpretation | 234 |
|                                     | Index  | 249 |