

THE POLITICAL MORALITY OF THE LATE SCHOLASTICS

Civic Life, War and Conscience

DANIEL SCHWARTZ

Hebrew University of Jerusalem

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

Acknowledgements	page x
List of Abbreviations	xii
Introduction	i
1.1 The Late Scholastics	5
1.2 Moral Theology, Casuistry and Contemporary Applied Philosophy	7
1.3 Remarks on Method	9
1.4 Précis of the Chapters	11
PART I: CIVIC LIFE	13
1 The Ethics of Electoral Bribing	15
1.1 Introduction	15
1.2 Simony as a Moral Constraint to the Use of Money in Elections	18
1.3 The Distributive Rights of Electoral Candidates	19
1.4 Aquinas and Soto on Using Money to Redeem Electoral Vexations	21
1.5 Suárez and the Separability of Intentions	23
1.6 Suárez's Ungrounded Conclusion	26
1.7 Following the Argument Where It Leads	30
1.8 Epistemic Constraints	31
1.9 Summary and Conclusions	31
2 The Ethics of Tax Evasion	33
2.1 Introduction	33
2.2 Purely Penal Law	35
2.3 Alfonso de Castro on Taxes	38
2.4 Navarrus and the Gravity of the Obligation to Pay Tax	40
2.5 Payment on Demand: Justice Through Custom	45
2.6 The Problem of the Ruler's Consent: Making Sense of Penalties	50
2.7 The Project in a Wider Perspective	55
3 Keeping Out the Foreign Poor: The City as a Private Person	58
3.1 The Poor Law Reforms in Europe	58
3.2 The Debate Outside Moral Theology	60

3.3	Medina and His Reception	62
3.4	Soto's Deliberación in Outline	64
3.5	The Controversy That Wasn't	67
3.6	Incorporating the Poor: The Limits of the Body Metaphor	71
3.7	Unfairness in the Allocation of Moral Burdens: Soto and Castro	74
3.8	Summary	76
4	The Political Duty to Keep Your Secrets	78
4.1	Introduction	78
4.2	Personal Opacity as a Social Need	80
4.3	The Value of Reputation	81
4.4	The Problem of Self-Defamation Under Torture	82
4.5	Cajetan on Reputation and Community	84
4.6	The Property Account of Reputation: Soto and Molina	86
4.7	Cracks in the Property Account of Reputation: Aragón and Lugo	88
4.8	Tomás Hurtado and Eminent Domain	92
4.9	Hurtado: Citizenship and Reputation	94
4.10	Cosimo Filiarchi and Primitive Inalienability	96
4.11	Conclusion	97
5	Scandal and Inexcusable Portraits	100
5.1	Introduction	100
5.2	Scandal and Paintings	100
5.3	Indecent Pictures: What They Do to You	104
5.4	Decent Portraits for Indecent Ends	106
5.5	Scandal, Over-Demandingness and Excuses	108
5.6	Excusing Portraitists	111
5.7	Francés de Urrutigoiti's Response	113
5.8	Summary	117
PART II: WAR		119
6	Conscientious Objection in War: From Duty to Right	121
6.1	Introduction	121
6.2	Adrian's Challenge	123
6.3	Vitoria on Doubt and Good Faith	125
6.4	Tutorist Defences of Obedience	126
6.5	The Doubtful Soldier: Obligated and Excused	128
6.6	Probabilist Defences of Obedience	132
6.7	The Freedom to Disobey	138
6.8	Domestic War That Is Just on Both Sides	141
6.9	Two Conceptions of Subject Disobedience	142
7	Patriotic Collaborationism: Demosthenes and Alexander	144
7.1	Genesis of the Controversy	144

7.2	False Leads	146
7.3	Overview of Leading Views	148
7.4	The Legal Way Out	149
7.5	Vázquez de Menchaca's Contractualism	151
7.6	Why the City Is Not Intentionally Killing the Innocent: Molina, Wiggers and Valencia	152
7.7	Why the Citizen Is Committing Suicide by Exiting the Besieged Republic: João de São Tomás	156
7.8	Taking Stock	158
8	War and the Boundaries of Punitive Jurisdiction	161
8.1	Introduction	161
8.2	The King as Judge	163
8.3	Breaking the Stalemate	164
8.4	Duties of Arbitration?	166
8.5	Vázquez's Revisionist View	170
8.6	Juan Sánchez and the Possibility of War That Is Just on Both Sides	179
8.7	Summary	181
9	Justice After Victory	183
9.1	Introduction	183
9.2	Post-Victory Justice: Conceptual Issues	184
9.3	Killing	186
9.4	Plundering	191
9.5	Enslaving and the Problem of the Moriscos	197
9.6	Summary and Conclusions	206
	Concluding Remarks	208
	Bibliography	211
	Index	228