

POWER AND CIVIL SOCIETY

TOWARD A DYNAMIC THEORY OF REAL SOCIALISM

Leszek Nowak

Translated by Krzysztof Sawala

CONTRIBUTIONS IN POLITICAL SCIENCE, NUMBER 271

Bernard K. Johnpoll, Series Editor

---

GREENWOOD PRESS

New York • Westport, Connecticut • London

CONTENTS

Preface	xi
Part One Assumptions: The Nature of Power
1. The Non-Christian Model of Man	3
Two Paradigms of Modern Social Sciences	3
The Christian Model of Man	5
The Non-Christian Model of Man	11
The Concept of Freedom in the Non-Christian Model of Man	15
2. The Nature of Power	21
Control and Domination	21
Class Domination	23
The Structure of Power	25
The Authority and Civil Society	31
Power as a Class and Civilizational Structure	38
Part Two Elementary Models of Power
3. Idealizing Assumptions	49
The Methodological Structure of the Theory of Power	49
The Structure of the Presented Theory	52

4. Enslavement, Revolution, Satanization: Materialist Model I	55
The Model	55
Multilinear Development and Progress in Model I	64
5. The State and the Organization of Civil Society: Materialist-Institutionalist Model II	69
The Hierarchy of Power and the Pyramid of Political Rule	69
Society and State Systems: Functional Dependencies	76
Society and State Systems: Actual Relations	82
State Systems and Society: Feedback Dependencies	86
The Concept of Power in Model II	90
6. Ideology of Power and Citizens' Utopia: Materialist-Consciousness Model III	93
The Nature of Collective Consciousness	93
An Ideological Loop and Utopian Counter-Loop: A Non-Weberian Approach to Legitimation	98
Social-Political Consciousness and Social-Political Conditions: The Case of Functionality	105
Social-Political Consciousness and Social-Political Conditions: The Case of Dysfunctionality	108
Revolution and Rebellion	114
The Concept of Power in Model III	118
 Part Three Global Models of Power
7. The Mechanism of Aggression	123
The Idealizing Assumptions	123
Social Causes and Consequences of Aggression	123
8. The Structure and Development of an Empire: Materialist Model IV	129
The Aggressor-Victim Relationship	129
Empire	133

9. A Bloc: Materialist Model V	139
Subordination	139
The Structure of the Bloc of Countries	142
The Concept of Power in Model V	144
Specific Cases	144
Part Four Special Models of Power
10. The Influence of Technological Progress on the Relations of Power: Materialist Model VI	149
The Idealizing Assumptions	149
Two Main Effects of Technological Progress	149
The Orwellian Problem	150
Progress of Technology and Civil Loops	151
Two Myths of Technological Progress: Marx's and Orwell's	152
11. Power and Its Forces of Coercion: Materialist Model VII	153
The Idealizing Assumptions	153
The Concept of Power in Model VII	153
Three Questions	153
The Problem of Loyalty of the Forces of Coercion	154
The Rebellion of the Forces of Coercion Against the Political Authority	154
A Civil Society and a Military Community	155
12. Factions Within Authority: Materialist-Institutionalist Model VIII	157
An Unwritten Simplification	157
The Concept of Faction	157
The Principle of Recruitment to a Faction	158
The Development of a Faction	158
Interfactional Struggle	159
A Program as an Ideology of a Faction	159
The Social Function of a Faction Toward Authority	160
The Social Function of a Faction Toward Civil Society	160

Part Five A Certain Historical Approximation:
The Development of the Soviet Union

13. Power and Civil Society in Soviet History: An Interpretation in Terms of Models I–II	165
The Development of Objective Social Relations in the Soviet Union	165
The Soviet Institutional-Political System	168
Perestroika: An Interpretation	171
An Attempt at Prediction	173
14. The Social-Political Consciousness. Real Marxism in Real Socialism: An Interpretation in Terms of Model III	177
Introductory Remarks	177
Changes in the Official Ideology in Socialism	178
The Consciousness of the Masses: From Marx to Christ	184
15. The Soviet Empire and the Soviet Bloc: An Interpretation in Terms of Models IV–V	187
The Range of Approximate Application of Model IV	187
The Exports of the Socialist Revolution	187
Aggression Is Mainly an Expansion of Internal Enslavement	188
“Peaceful Coexistence” and the Idea of a Common European Home	188
The National Movements as Movements of the Citizens of Provinces	189
Neither the Normal State nor the Evil Empire	190
Remarks on the Socialist Bloc	191
A Prediction	192
16. Models of Socialism and Its History: A Divergence	195
A Divergence of Models I–V from the Social History of the Soviet Union	195
Introducing the Property Dimension into Political Society	196
The NEP Effect	197

Conclusions	199
The Concept of Power: Hypotheses and Definitions	199
Limitations of the Outlined Theory of Power	200
On the Institutional and Idealist Approaches to Socialism	202
Appendices
I. Enslavement, Charisma, and the Internalization of Norm	205
II. The Concept of Class Loop and the Rotating Elites Theory	207
III. Social Consciousness as a Hypostasis	209
IV. Explaining Why Democracy Is (Normally) Peaceful	211
V. On the Notion of Totalitarianism	213
VI. How Theories of the Historical Process Are (Methodologically) Possible	217
Bibliography	223
Index	231