

Contents

Preface	viii
Acknowledgements	xiii
Illustration Acknowledgements	xv
Prologue: The Other among his Peers	1
PART I CATASTROPHE AND EMANCIPATION
1 Disaster Years as Normality: Childhood and Youth in Gummersbach	9
Born in 1929	22
Turning point: 1945	25
2 At University in Göttingen, Zurich and Bonn	33
Doctorate on the philosophy of Schelling	43
Speaking out as a freelance journalist	47
The beginnings of a career as a public intellectual	59
PART II POLITICS AND CRITIQUE
3 Education intellectuelle in Café Marx	69
Mutual trust between Habermas and the Adornos	73
Horkheimer's animosity towards the 'dialectical Mr H.'	80
The 'most promising intellectual'	88
4 Under the Aegis of Conflicting Personalities: Abendroth and Gadamer	92
A man of the democratic left	108
Positions in the dispute over the right form of critique and good politics	112

5	Back in Frankfurt: Torn between Academic Work and Political Practice	123
	In search of an epistemological foundation for critique	133
	Thinking with the protest movement against the protest movement	137
	In the line of fire from his own side	146
	A new track in philosophical thought	158
6	In the Ivory Tower of Social Scientific Research	164
	Between academic management and research	173
	A theory about the impossibility of not learning	182
	The minefield of political interpretations in the 'German autumn'	186
	Resignation	199
PART III SCIENCE AND COMMITMENT
7	Genius Loci: In Frankfurt for the Third Time	209
	The magnum opus	214
	The theory of action	215
	System and lifeworld	217
	Everyday life in Frankfurt	227
8	New Projects	236
	Under the spell of the philosophy of law	244
	Morality and law	245
9	Battles over the Politics of Ideas	251
	Opinion leader of the New Left?	254
	The historians' debate	263
	Habermas as a sceptic towards reunification	269
10	Against Germanomania and Nationalism	276
	Habermas's ambiguous attitude towards military interventions	279
	The asylum debate	289
	A memorial to the murdered Jews	292
PART IV COSMOPOLITAN SOCIETY AND JUSTICE
11	Critique as a Vocation: The Transition into the Third Millennium	305
	A plea for freedom of the will and the inviolability of the person	320
	The philosopher as globetrotter	326
	Many honours and an affair	339

12	The Taming of Capitalism and the Democratization of Europe	347
	Democratic politics – a counterbalance to capitalism?	350
	European integration	355
	On the way to a democratically constituted world order	363
13	Philosophy in the Age of Postmetaphysical Modernity	368
	What can I know? Linguistic pragmatics as a form of naturalism and realism	371
	What should I do? From the demand of virtue to the assumption of rationality	376
	What may I hope? Religion in a post-secular society	383
	What is man? Language and intersubjectivity	392
14	Books at an Exhibition	400
	Consciousness-raising and rescuing critique	404
	Epilogue: The Inner Compass	424
	Notes	429
	Genealogy	526
	Chronology	528
	List of Habermas's Lectures and Seminars	533
	Visiting Professorships	542
	List of Archives	543
	Bibliography of Works by Jürgen Habermas	545
	Secondary Literature	559
	Index	578