

CONTENTS

Introduction: Science, Naturalism, and the Problem of Normativity	1
Mario De Caro and David Macarthur

PART I. CONCEPTUAL AND HISTORICAL BACKGROUND

1. The Wider Significance of Naturalism: A Genealogical Essay 23
Akeel Bilgrami
2. Naturalism and Quietism 55
Richard Rorty
3. Is Liberal Naturalism Possible? 69
Mario De Caro and Alberto Voltolini

PART II. PHILOSOPHY AND THE NATURAL SCIENCES

4. Science and Philosophy 89
Hilary Putnam
5. Why Scientific Realism May Invite Relativism 100
Carol Rovane

PART III. PHILOSOPHY AND THE HUMAN SCIENCES

6. Taking the Human Sciences Seriously 123
David Macarthur
7. Reasons and Causes Revisited 142
Peter Menzies

PART IV. META-ETHICS AND NORMATIVITY

8. Metaphysics and Morals 173
T. M. Scanlon
9. The Naturalist Gap in Ethics 193
Erin I. Kelly and Lionel K. McPherson
10. Phenomenology and the Normativity of Practical Reason 205
Stephen L. White

PART V. EPISTEMOLOGY AND NORMATIVITY

11. Truth as Convenient Friction 229
Huw Price
12. Exchange on “Truth as Convenient Friction” 253
Richard Rorty and Huw Price
13. Two Directions for Analytic Kantianism: Naturalism and Idealism 263
Paul Redding

PART VI. NATURALISM AND HUMAN NATURE

14. How to be Naturalistic Without Being Simplistic in the Study of Human Nature 289
John Dupré
15. Dewey, Continuity, and McDowell 304
Peter Godfrey-Smith
16. Wittgenstein and Naturalism 322
Marie McGinn

List of Contributors 353

Index 357