

Environmental Ethics

From theory to practice

MARION HOURDEQUIN

Bloomsbury Academic
An imprint of Bloomsbury Publishing Plc

B L O O M S B U R Y
LONDON • OXFORD • NEW YORK • NEW DELHI • SYDNEY

Contents

List of illustrations ix

Acknowledgments x

PART ONE Environmental values 1

1 Bringing values to light 3

Introduction 3

The ubiquity of values 5

Values and worldviews 10

Ethics, metaethics, and moral progress 20

Conclusion 27

2 Classical ethical theories and the environment 29

Introduction 29

Utilitarianism, cost-benefit analysis, and the environment 31

Kantian ethics and the environment 40

Virtue ethics and the environment 46

Conclusion 54

3 Anthropocentrism and its critics:

Broadening moral concern 57

Introduction: Intrinsic value and moral standing 57

Value and the environment: Sentiocentrism, biocentrism, and ecocentrism 62

Beyond intrinsic value? Relational approaches to ethics 76

Conclusion: Care and meaning—toward a relational perspective in environmental ethics 84

4 The social dimensions of environmental problems 87

Introduction 87

Ecofeminism 88

Environmental justice	100
Conclusion: Interspecies justice? Anthropocentrism and nonanthropocentrism revisited	112

PART TWO Environmental ethics in practice 115

5 Ethics, institutions, and the environment	117
Introduction	117
Ethics, institutions, and infrastructure	119
Sustainability and sustainable development	131
Conclusion	141
6 Global climate change	143
Introduction	143
The moral challenges of climate change	149
Justice and climate change	156
Geoengineering	163
7 Ecological restoration	169
Introduction	169
Ecological restoration: History, foundations, and fundamental goals	170
Authenticity and historical fidelity in ecological restoration	174
Faking nature?	177
Hybrid landscapes, climate change, and other challenges	180
Restoration, participation, and engagement	185
Conclusion: Narrative, continuity, and the future of restoration	189
8 Engaging environmental concern, promoting change	195
Introduction	195
Pluralism, pragmatism, and politics	197
Enlivening the moral imagination	202
Integrating the personal and the political:
Toward an ecological culture	209
Conclusion	217

Notes 219

References 221

Index 237